SAYS PROBERS NOT SEEKING BEST POSSIBLE EVIDENCE; CLASHES WITH SEN. KENYON

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The senatorial investigating committee charged with the task of exposing the "Cox" campaign, today clashed with Senator Kenyon over the question of whether the committee was seeking the best possible evidence.

Moore told Senator Kenyon there were men better able to hit the Republican plan than either he or Governor Cox, and asked why Colonel William Boyce Thompson, of New York, chairman of the Republican war and navy committee and "the sixty men of the paid organization," were not called.

Governor Cox has no evidence in support of his charges outside of what Moore brought to Chicago with him, the witness said. As he spoke he unfolded a massive brief case and took a stack of papers that apparently numbered several hundred sheets.

Governor Cox sent him to Chicago, Mr. Moore said, to "give the committee the list from whom the senators could get the information to support the governor's charges." He mentioned Harry M. Blair, first assistant to Fred W. Upham, Republican national treasurer, and several other employees of Upham's office.

"Have you all the leads Governor Cox has," Senator Kenyon asked.

"I couldn't say no to that," Moore replied.

"I didn't ask you to give us just part of his information?"

"Certainly not. But the Republican bulletins and the Republican papers furnish all the leads necessary."

"Governor Cox has no evidence outside of what you have brought to us?" Senator Kenyon continued.

"I think not."

Signs of friction developed when Chairman Kenyon questioned Mr. Moore about an interview he gave newspaper correspondents last Thursday, when he appeared to testify but was not called.

The chairman asked Mr. Moore if he had said that the committee was afraid to call him to the stand and if he had said the committee was not seeking the evidence to prove Governor Cox's charges.

"I did not," the witness exclaimed.

"You didn't need to get angry," Senator Kenyon said.

"I am not getting angry. What I said is that you were not seeking the best evidence. And I say it again. You are not."

"Did you say: 'If the committee wants to, it can get the men here who will prove the falsity or truth of Governor Cox's charges in 48 hours'?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"Well, if I did not say it, then I say it now," responded Mr. Moore.

Mr. Moore said he was sure that Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the Republican national committee, would not testify to untruths, but he was equally sure that the Republican official was a victim of either mistakes or bad book keeping when he testified concerning the quotas assigned various states.

Senator Reed protested that Senator Kenyon was seeking what the witness did not know rather than what he knew.

"You can question him in your own way when your turn comes," retorted the Iowa senator, and he then read charges from Governor Cox's Wheeling speech to the effect that "powerful interests" were scheming to buy government contracts and from the South Bend speech that so far as Republican contributions were concerned, "the sky is the limit." He also read a Cox statement that $500,000 had been raised in Ohio in the twinkling of an eye.

In answering Senator Kenyon's attack, Moore said:

"I think not. But the Republican bulletins and the Republican papers furnish all the leads necessary."

Root's Conception Of Nations' League Does Not Harmonize With Opinion Of Senator Harding In Many Instances

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1920 By The Portsmouth Times)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Elliott Root has an entirely different conception of the relationship between the League of Nations and the world court of justice than prevails in the minds of many Republican leaders, including perhaps Senator Harding. For while the Republican candidates latest speech has been interpreted as meaning that the League could be rejected and the world court preserved, people who have recently discussed the matter with Mr. Root in Europe say separation of the two projects would leave untouched a vast number of causes of war which are not within the domain of jurisprudence or legal bodies created by the world court.

"One of the most serious misapprehensions in America regarding the League of Nations," writes an American who has just made an analysis of the permanent court of justice and the rest of the League, "and a misapprehension which might have very far reaching and deplorable effects concerns the independence of the permanent court of international justice and their branches of league activity. Recent discussions and press comment have shown a tendency towards an utter misunderstanding of the relationship. First, it must be stated unequivocally that the permanent court is not only an essential part of the League, it is indeed the very backbone of the League, but beyond that is wholly inseparable from it. The two are interlocking and interdependent to such a degree that neither could function properly without the other."

SENATOR HARDING OPPOSED TO THE ANTI-STRIKE CLAUSES AND COMPULSORY ARBITRATION

MARION, O., Sept. 7.—Increased production, a closer question of interest between employees and employers, and abolishment of the "strike" element in labor—these were the outstanding points made by Senator Warren G. Harding in his first conservative address on labor problems.

The candidate's speech was not one of promise of what he or his party would do if successful in the election, but rather a discussion of the percho logical element in work which he described as "the supreme engagement, the sublime luxury of life."

Senator Harding announced himself as opposed both to anti-strike statutes and to compulsory arbitration.

"You cannot take from any man the right to quit his employment and we cannot have compulsory arbitration because all parties must consent to establish arbitration and enforce its conclusions," he said.

The proclamation that capital and labor were always opposing elements, Senator Harding said, "came from those who would destroy our social system and is utterly false."

He urged a fair trial of the Cummings-Koch transportation act which he admitted was a "compromise" and "not perfect," as the best means to railroad restoration.

Senator Harding announced his full belief in unionism and in collective bargaining, both of which principles, he said, had combined to speed labor toward its just rewards.

MATEWAN DEPUTIES ARE READY FOR TRIAL

WILLIAMSON, W. VA., September 7.—Counsel for twenty-three citizens of Mingo county who are facing indictments, each containing seven counts charging murder in connection with the Matewan riots on May 19, indicated here that they would be ready to go to trial when the cases are called. A statement to this effect was made by John J. Connelley, of Wheeling, who is associated with Harold W. Houston, of Charleston, and Thomas West, of Williamson, in the defense of Sid Hatfield and other alleged slayers of seven Baldwin-Felts detectives. Mr. Connelley also stated that the defense would probably face trial together, thus saving time and expense. John S. Maremont and S. B. Davis, of Charleston, who with prosecuting Attorney Wade H. Brodson and others represent the state, indicated this evening that a decision as to a readiness for trial would depend largely on developments of tomorrow morning.

Maremont said the defense would have the privilege of electing whether or not the accused should go to trial individually or collectively. Connelley said the state also had this privilege.

Judge Jarmen is said to have told that the privilege of election rests with the defense alone. In this connection there is a report from sources close to one of the defendants that he will ask for a separate trial.

NEIGHBORS HAVE ALL HEARD HER PRAISE IT

Youngstown Woman Says After What Tanlac Has Done For Her She Is Glad Of The Opportunity To Recommend It To Others.

"Tanic is the only medicine that ever gave me any relief and I think I have tried them all," said Mrs. D. Corolla Morrison, of 618 George St., Youngstown, Ohio, the other day. "Why, all my neighbors have heard me praising Tanlac, and I expect to praise it the longest day I live, for it has broken up a bad case of indigestion from which I suffered for three years. Always after eating I had a feeling like a heavy weight in the pit of my stomach and gas formed which caused the sharpest kind of pains and sometimes almost smothered me."

"I had awful pains in my chest and sides and my arms and shoulders hurt so with rheumatism that I could hardly use my arms at all. I never slept well at night and got so weak and run down I couldn't do any of my house work and in fact didn't have strength enough to walk even a short distance. "I had to mend for my first bottle of Tanlac simply because I was unable to go for it, but I went after the second myself, and it was the first time for three months that I had been able to do down town. Why, do you know I had not been taking this medicine three days before I felt a great deal better, and I finished the first bottle feeling so much better it surprised me."

"After four weeks I was able to do all my housework and didn't feel the least bit tired when night came. My appetite is better now than it has been for years, and I eat just anything I want and never feel a sign of indigestion. All those aches and pains have left me and I sleep like a healthy child all night long and get up in the morning feeling just fine. Tanlac is certainly a grand medicine and I am more than glad of this opportunity to recommend it."

Tanic is sold in Portsmouth by the Fisher and Stretch Pharmacy and the leading druggists in every town.

Caught In Undercurrent Miss Rush Drowns In Brush Creek

Searchers Unable To Find Body; Heroic Efforts Made To Rescue Unfortunate Victim

Caught in an undercurrent and unable to swim, Miss Clara Rush, 17, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goetz, 1223 Logan street, drowned about 11:15 o'clock Monday morning in Brush Creek, at the Filmore Musser Camp. All efforts to locate the body Monday afternoon and evening were futile and search was resumed this morning. The creek is higher than usual, caused by the heavy rains of Saturday night and Sunday and considerable difficulty will be experienced no doubt in locating the body.

Miss Rush would have entered upon her senior school work in the Portsmouth High School this morning. She was one of a crowd of about 25 seniors who chose to spend the day at the Musser camp.

Paul Graf and James Steinhauer, who attempted to save Miss Rush, had narrow escapes from drowning. Like fate, the girl struggling in the water grasping the young men in such a way that she caused them to go under the water several times before they were able to shake off her death-like grip.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Roth and Miss Estelle Welby, senior faculty member of the High School, were chaperones of the party of young people, who made the trip to camp early Monday morning.

Were Eye-Witnesses
Miss Ruby Plinson, Miss Catherine Robinson, Paul Graf and James Steinhauer were eye-witnesses to the drowning. The young people had been in the water some distance below the point where the drowning occurred. After wading and swimming there for a short time they went up stream a short distance and started to wade again. The boys went in first, followed by the girls. Miss Plinson is a good swimmer and was in the lead. The others were following and wading. A short distance from the bank, Miss Plinson came to a step-off and started swimming. Before she could give warning to those behind her, Miss Rush had reached the step-off and had started cutting for help, flailing herself in deep water. Paul Graf was closest to Miss Rush and he went to her aid. She grabbed hold of one of his arms and he was forced under at once. He then managed to shake off her grip, and went out, he started for shore. In the meantime, James Steinhauer, mistaking Graf's plight, went to his aid, but before he reached him Graf had freed himself. Steinhauer then attempted to rescue Miss Rush, but she threw one arm around his neck and was on his back, putting him in a position where he could do nothing for the girl or himself. Steinhauer and the girl went down twice, Steinhauer calling for help when he came up the first time.

After going down the second time, Steinhauer managed to break the girl's hold and he was just able to reach shallow water before giving completely out.

The alarm was at once sounded and several of the young people went to McBurnett for help. Mr. Roth was not at the camp at the time of the drowning. He was on his way out from the city and reached camp shortly after the distressing accident. Word of the drowning was telephoned to relatives in this city, who at once communicated with Fred Goetz, who is assistant road foreman of engines of the N. & W. and who was out on an eastern trip.

A telegram informing him of the drowning reached him at Ft. Gay, W. Va., and he came home on N. & W. train No. 15. He took the Cincinnati train following No. 15 to McBurnett and from there hurried to the camp. Winston Leno, an N. & W. employee, accompanied Goetz and he lived a number of times but was unable to locate the body.

Search Given Up
After darkness had fallen last night the search was given up, to be resumed this morning. Grappling hooks by men in boats are being used this morning. Miss Rush had been living with Mr. and Mrs. Goetz since she was a baby. She had received her education in the public schools and had completed her Junior year in the High School. She was looking forward to Tuesday when she would begin her last year in High School. The girl was well known in High School and had a legion of friends who will be shocked to learn of her tragic death.

Otway Loses Close Game

The most exciting baseball game played at Otway since the days of Wally Pratt was pulled off last night when Otway defeated the home team in a thrilling battle, the final score being 3 to 2.

It was a tight pitcher's battle with Edwina McDermott's crack right hander fighting against Harold Fowler's base-stealing recruits from the creek. For six innings the two sides fought on even terms but in the seventh the break came for McDermott when they succeeded in bunting their hits and three tallies came over. In the eighth Otway started a rally and came near tying the score, the attack first falling short as two runs were in and the bases were jammed with runners when the final out was registered. The fielding feature was a one-handed stab of a hot liner by Thompson. Otway's short fielder, from Jeannette's bat, which cut off at least two runs.

The combat was witnessed by a great throng and there was some tall rooting by the partisans of both sides. The victory gave the McDermott outfit the series, two games to nothing.

BIG CROP OF HAY FEVER JOKES

But Kentucky Man Says People Who Belong to Hay Fever Colony Are Kidding Themselves

Wouldn't Be Any Hay Fever If Simple Home Remedy Was Given a Chance

"Yes, there's a real NINETY-NINE per cent effective remedy for hay fever," says a doctor in a prominent Kentucky city. "But I don't expect anyone to believe me, because the treatment is so easy and the cost not worth mentioning. The annual crop of Hay Fever jokes would be mighty scarce if people would get three-quarters of an ounce of Merck's Allergin and by just adding water that has been boiled, make a pint of liquid that will prove a real help to all who suffer."

Many of my Hay Fever friends tell me that by starting to gargle and sniff or spray the nostrils a few times a day the expected severe attack often fails to appear, and in cases where it does show up it is very mild and does not annoy."

It's the same way with those folks who belong to the Better Class of Phlegmatics who dispense identical advice that if you will just cough up a little phlegm, you will get ready to make a spit, for up to the present time there has been little demand for this friendly medicine.

Ten Killed In A Train Crash

DENVER, COLO., Sept. 7.—Adams county officials today began an investigation to fix responsibility for the head-on collision of two interurban cars which killed eleven persons and injured 99 others near Globeville yesterday.

The accident occurred shortly after a special train carrying excursionists to Eldorado Springs left Globeville, a Denver suburb. The regular train, behind schedule, sped around a curve, one-half mile from Globeville, and into the special train, while motorists of both trains slammed on their brakes in a vain effort to halt the speeding cars.

WE CLAMBERED down, THROUGH HEAVY thickets, AND WE rowed the boat, OUT TO a rocky ledge, WHERE BLACK bass bide, THEN JOE let out a roar, FOR HIS cigar box, HAD FISH lines in it, INSTEAD OF smokes, AND HE refused with scorn, OUR CIGARETTES, HE SAID they were not, EVEN FIT for bait, HE'D HAVE a man's smoke, OR NOTHING, AND FOR an hour, HE GOT nothing, NOT EVEN a bite, WHILE WE pulled 'em in, AT LAST he grunted, "GIMME A cigarette," AND IT just happened, HIS LUCK changed then, SO NOW JOE swears, THAT THOSE cigarettes, WERE SO blamed good, HE BAITED a hook, WITH ONE of them, AND CAUGHT a whale, PARTICULAR FISH, he says, HIMSELF AMONG them, ARE JUST the sort, THAT THEY satisfy.

LABOR DAY OUTING BIG SUCCESS

Labor Day parades under the direction of Central Labor Council will be a matter of history and in the future all day outings will be held, the success of the big picnic Monday showing the Central Labor Council members that there is more interest in an affair such as held this year instead of parades.

The outing held by Central Labor Council at Coney Island Monday, was the biggest kind of a success. The events scheduled for the day moved along in fine style. Edward Switalski devoted his time to the starting of the various contests.

Three ball games were also staged. The Plumbers and Carpenters played to a 10 to 3 score, the plumbers being the winners. The score of the game between the Electricians and Painters is more or less a secret, and both teams have sworn not to tell the result. The last game between the Printers and a picked team resulted in a 3 to 0 defeat.

The picked team winning hands down. The baby show was one of the biggest events of the day. More than forty babies were entered all under 15 months of age.

The winner of the first prize was Helen, baby daughter of Mrs. William Briggs. Second prize was awarded to Catherine, baby daughter of Mrs. John McGraw. The prizes were gold necklaces. The judges in this contest were all from Kentucky and included Squire Collier, John Bondy and Samuel Shepherd.

The boys' race was won by Wally Shaw, who was far in the lead when he finished the one-lap of the race course. His prize was a base ball, Carl Nichols finished second and won a ball bat.

In the girls' race, Esther Wallace was first and Nola Johnson was second, both girls being boxes of candy. Mrs. A. W. Dixon was winner of the first prize in the married woman's race. She received an umbrella. Mrs. Harry Brooks was second and her prize was a pair of silk hose.

The bicycle race was easily won by John Anderson, who, was 10 yards ahead of Conley Hannahs, who came in second. First prize was an electric flashlight and second prize a cation.

The three-legged race was won by Paul Newman and John McGraw, who were given silk ties. Miss Nora Sullivan was winner of the chewing gum selling contest and she received a gold bracelet.

Judge J. K. Thomas was judge of the races and contests with the exception of the baby show. The island was thronged from early morning until dark last evening. Many brought baskets filled with good things to eat and spent the day. Many gallons of root beer were given away during the noon lunch hour. A merry-go-round furnished amusement for the younger people, as well as some of the old folks.

Following are the committeemen who were in charge of the successful outing: Ground and Water Committee—Warren Collier, L. C. Murphy, A. W. Dixon. Prize Committee—Lawrence Ferguson, Clarence Eyles, E. T. Jones. Advertising and Contest Committee—Ed Switalski, J. L. McCullough, Joe A. Dwyer. Refreshment Committee—L. C. Hendler, S. E. Oursler, Ed Switalski. Entertainment Committee—Joe A. Dwyer, Win. ## 5c per corn

Ends it quickly and completely

When you suffer a corn please remember this:

Less than five cents and a moment's time will end it by a touch.

Apply liquid Blue-jay or a Blue-jay plaster. The pain will stop. And soon the corn, however old, will loosen and come out.

Millions of people have proved this. Every night a myriad of corns are ended in this way.

Corns are becoming rarer and rarer, as everybody knows.

The reason lies in Blue-jay. It has solved the corn problem for all who find it out.

Don't pare corns and pad them. Don't cling to old harsh treatments. Apply this scientific method—watch it act.

Then remember that every corn can be ended in that quick, gentle way.

Order the Blue-jay now—your drug-gist sells it.

Dear Dolly—I have kept steady company with a fellow for some time and I want to look at another fellow and don't you think he ought to do the same. He tells me he loves me better than anyone. He has been married. I have brown hair and black eyes. He is an awful nice fellow. Please advise me how to win him back.

BLACK EYES.

If you can't vamp him with your black eyes, I don't know of any other way to win him.

Dear Miss Dolly—It seems as though I became more "black" after I first wrote to you. If you knew me personally I don't believe you would accuse me of having "the big head." One anything. You are probably self-conscious or nervous or both. I don't see how any boy could go through High School and come out feeling as you do. I think yet you are selfish, without realizing that you are. Be thoughtful of other people, and think of their comfort before you do of your own. If I were you I would not worry about entertaining people. It isn't necessary to act like a clown in order to be popular. Ordinarily people who say the least, know the most. A good listener is just about as important as a good talker. Of course if you can't talk still, you ought to see a physician and get something to quiet your nerves. It has been said that life is very generous in its return for what we put into it. If you will try you will find this statement true.

Dear Dolly—What is the etiquette concerning the following: Who is to go to see one another of friends and visitors. The friends first or visitors.

TIMES READER.

When visitors come to the city their friends should call on them first.

Dear Dolly—I have two old coins, one a two cent piece made in 1669, the other a one cent, while with Eagle on face made in 1867. I would like to know the value of these and where to send them to get it.

DAILY READER.

According to my U. S. Bureau Guide book the first coin is worth 4 cents and the second one 2 cents. They are worth more than that to you as souvenirs, aren't they? If you will look in the back of magazines you will find the names of firms that advertise for old coins. Inquire at the local railroad ticket office for fare to Bond, Mississippi.

Dear Dolly—I am a married woman and have a sweet little baby and I dearly love my husband but he doesn't seem to care for me. He goes out every night, and if I ask him to let me go with him he swears he is going to leave me. He also says he takes other girls to the show. Do you think he does?

WOMAN WRITER.

I don't think he does. He just says that to tease you. I believe you would get along better if you did not seem to care where he goes. Sometimes men go out just for spite. Have a good time with the baby and let him strictly alone for awhile and see how things work out.

Dear Miss Wise—Will you please print in your column the sleep signs and their meanings? I hear that this was in your paper quite awhile ago, but I was out of the city and did not get the clipping. I will cut it out and keep it this time.

FROM JACK.

I do not know the stamp signs, but I do know one will mail them to I shall be glad to print them. I hope, however, that you will not take them seriously, as there is no significance attached to the way a stamp is placed on an envelope, except to show that careless people do not always place them in the upper right hand corner where they belong.

Dear Miss Wise—As you have helped so many others will you please help me. Dolly I have been married the second time and have four children. My first husband is dead and my second husband is so jealous and cross with me. He does not want me to go anywhere and he is so cruel and makes my life so miserable and unhappy. I am so dissatisfied I don't know what to do. I worked and kept my children before I married the second time and was so happy, but things are so unhappy now.

WORRIED WIFE.

If you were getting along all right you made a mistake by marrying the second time and it is up to you to stand the consequences. You will have to face a certain amount of unhappiness resulting from your lack of wisdom in choosing the wrong man. If you shirk your duty to your family the unhappiness will come in some other form. Are you sure you do not give your husband a reason to be jealous? In what way is he cruel? If he abuses or mistreats you or the children I'd certainly tell him to get out, and never come back until he learns how to behave himself. If you got along all right before you married him you can get along now.

Dear Dolly Wise—I am a poor boy 16 years old and have had a hard time getting through the world since 7 years old. Now Dolly I have been going with a girl for sixteen months and I love this girl and some day hope to make her my wife, but a week or so ago she quit me and she never had any reason for doing so that I saw. She was a girl that never runs around any and always attends to her own business. Now this girl is only 16 years old. Now Dolly I would rather some body would knock me down than to have her quit me. Now I can not get another one as they all seem to be afraid of me and I always try to treat people right and so I would like for you to tell me what to do as it is so hard for me to go home from work and not have any girl to keep company with and I never did a thing that I know of for her to quit me for she said that she would not go with any other boy if I did not go with any other girl and I kept my word, but now she has turned me down and I do not know what to do or how to get her back. I will be your friend forever.

SPIKE.

I think the girl was wise in quitting you. Of course she should have let you down easy, but since she is only 16 she is entirely too young to keep steady company. You have been going with her so long that you don't know how many nice girls there are in Portsmouth, and now is your chance to find out. You won't be in a position to marry for at least five years and by that time you will know just what kind of a girl you want to marry. The girl you will have a chance to meet other boys. Maybe after you have both tried going out with others you will be better satisfied if you go back to each other again. I will reduce the monopoly for awhile anyway.

Learn what clean teeth mean

All statements approved by authorities

See the results of the new way of teeth cleaning. They are quick and decisive. You will know at once that they mean a lifetime of cleaner, safer teeth.

Millions of people employ it. And the glistening teeth seen everywhere show what it means. See what it means to you.

A film combatant

Most tooth troubles are now traced to film—to that vicious coat you feel. Film clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The ordinary tooth paste does not end film. So the film remains—much of it—and may do a ceaseless damage. Nearly all people suffer from it, more or less.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. So, despite the tooth brush, all these troubles have been constantly increasing.

New methods now

Dental science, after years of searching, has found new ways to fight film. All have been proved by many clinical tests. They are so efficient that leading dentists everywhere advise them.

These methods are combined now in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. It has brought a new era in teeth cleaning. This is the tooth paste we urge you to try.

Watch the new effects

The use of Pepsodent at once reveals many new effects.

One ingredient is pepsin. One multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. One multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps the teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily cling.

Pepsodent is the new-day tooth paste, complying with all modern requirements. It does what never before was done. You should learn its benefits at once.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. Watch the teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

Every one in your family needs Pepsodent daily, and a week will prove this to you. Cut out the coupon now.

HEL-LO-o-o-o PETE:

In two more shakes of a lamb's tail I'd have been between the sheets—But I got taken with another large idea for Camel Cigarettes and that's so bright you can phone 'em to cut the current because you just had your lamp lit!

Tell you, it's a whale of a stunt! Everybody right quiet—and hush off! NOW—for as I know or ever heard, there never has been one of those zippy slogans under that big display name "Camel." I'VE GOT ONE—get me? Put both your ears close to the ground and get the rumble of a broadside like this:

Camel

Once it meant an animal—
Now a Cigarette!

Wow, Pete! I'll testify that's a stoneless peach! Spread it like I've denied it in here—and you've uncorked an eye! Suppose you'll want to call me old Mr. Hammer because I hit the nail on the head!

And, bet real money that if this slogan stuff keeps me awake the rest of the night, I'll wire and offer it to R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. before you hit the deck! And, I'll be spending some of the proceeds for moon eats! In the "lang-wage" of Jigger Jones of Joplin, "you tell 'em old yacht, you've got the sales spirit!"

Blowing out of St. Louis at 10.12 tomorrow with a bundle of business. Off for Ohio. Got something on my mind!

Till I get it off—

Shorty.

Ex-TRY! Ex-TRY!
Just got a wire, I
sold 'em that slogan!
Pete, eat on me! S.

Roots Conception Of Nations League

The permanent court in the first place, owes its origin to the covenant of the League. It was because of article 16 of the covenant, because of the intention of the council of the League, and through the extraordinary preparatory work of the secretariat of the League that the commission of Jurists was able to meet at The Hague and carry out its work so effectively, had it not been for the League, the best that could have been hoped for would have been that some government of its own initiative might have called such a group of men together but these men would have met with very little authority, would have been the mere representatives of chosen governments rather than of a world organization, would have been aided by practically no preliminary work and would have had such inadequate staff as a single government could give. This, however, is the mechanical side.

What is more important is what may be called the spirit of the court. The spirit has been drawn entirely from the League of Nations and will in the future receive its greatest strength from the League. Consider, first, the vasty intricate problem of the method of selecting, say a dozen judges, to sit as a permanent court dealing with the interests of fifty nations. This problem hitherto has been utterly unsolved. Upon its many difficulties the second league conference in 1907 was unable to clear. No way has up till now been found of solving the conflict of interest between the big powers who claimed the right always to have a representative on court and the little powers who refused to recognize any system of selection destroying the theory of the equality of sovereign states. The existence of the League solved this problem immediately. Already in the organization of the League itself a distinction had been made between the big powers who are always represented on the council and the little powers who sit on the assembly of the League. Around this scheme it was possible to weave a system of joint selection of judges by the council which gave the big powers reasonable assurance of constant representation on the court without, at the same time, forcing the little powers to recognize the representation as a matter of right. This solution, it should be noted, was proposed and put through by Elihu Root.

The constitution of the court, therefore, with its roots deeply upon the soil of the League, is a thing that there were no League, there would be no method of selection of judges, and consequently the world would be in exactly the same state as in 1907 when The Hague conference created a full court project without being able to agree on the method of securing its personnel. From this viewpoint it follows that a nation not a member of the League of Nations could not take part in the selection of the judges of this court for it would be represented on neither the assembly nor the council of the League.

But if the court is essential to the League, the League is a thousand times more essential to the court. It is through the League that the field of international agreements in going to be enlarged. The League already has functioning bodies for the creation of international understandings in international labor, health, transportation, disarmament, financial and etc. While every one of the agreements arrived at in international conference under the auspices of the League must be approved by the individual governments before becoming effective for these governments, nevertheless the existence of a constant machinery of conference assures the development of a whole vast series of new agreements between nations.

"In other words, the settlement of a mere question of law might still leave untouched the more basic political questions involved and such questions wholly beyond the competency of the court. The court therefore, will need the council as an essential corollary in three cases which it may itself be unable to handle.

COX FLAYS "SENATORIAL OLIGARCHY"

GRAND FORKS, N. D., September 7.—Several rear platform speeches were to be made on the way to Minot by Governor Cox today. National Commissioner Perry and U. S. Marshal S. J. Doyle joined the governor's party at Fargo. The governor spoke here from the court house steps near the station. He denounced the "senatorial oligarchy" and declared Senator Harding was its "reactionary candidate." The governor declared the Republican candidate leaders had been in a "conspiracy" to defeat the treaty. Urging independent thought and action by the

Want Village Streets Improved

William Ralsin, Rarden councilman, appeared before the county commissioners Tuesday seeking improvement of the main roads through the village. Mr. Ralsin declared that work has always heretofore been done by the commissioners, but the present board contend they have no authority to spend county funds for road improvement within the corporate limits of any village. The village streets are in bad condition and the town has no funds available with which to make the needed repairs. It is claimed the matter has been left open for further consideration.

bulletin described as "of commanding influence."

He said Fred Miller, of Columbus, was chairman in Ohio and that, like other state chairmen, he had appointed chairmen of local ways and means committees.

"I found that usually in Ohio these local chairmen were manufacturers," said Mr. Moore.

The witness reiterated the charge that specific quotas were assessed against local committees and then said: "But these local organizations were largely 'recovery'. The real workers for funds were paid men headed by Harry M. Blair, assistant to Mr. Upham."

He said Blair had under him certain "divisional directors" in charge of sections of the country and that two of them were C. W. Lee and Henry E. Owens.

"These are the professional money raisers," said Mr. Moore. A battalion of "moppers-up" is also a part of the Republican finance organization, according to Mr. Moore. He said these men went in after the organization headed by Colonel Thompson had collected from "the cream list."

Mr. Moore said that one of these "moppers-up" was A. A. Proitzman, of the Hollenden Hotel, Cleveland, and that another Edmund Silverland, of Youngstown, had left town after he had heard that a request had been filed for a subpoena calling him before the committee. Mr. Moore said that Chester C. Hamlin, of Colorado, had raised $100,000 in that state.

Mr. Moore said that Warren A. Myers, a manufacturer, was in charge of raising the Republican "quota" in Springfield, Ohio, but that the active work was done by Henry Freeman, an employee of Mr. Myers' company.

Senator Kenyon asked for more about the alleged Ohio quota. "Governor Cox says that $500,000 was raised in the twinkling of an eye," the senator said, quoting from the governor's Wheeling, West Virginia, address.

"Yes, and I have heard it was more than that," Mr. Moore retorted. "In my own town of Youngstown $72,000 was raised more than a month ago."

He suggested that the committee call C. H. Booth, of Youngstown; George M. Jones, Toledo; John Kirby, Dayton; Frank V. Knauss, Portsmouth; John A. Kelly, Columbus; and Dudley Blossom and W. A. Woodford, Cleveland. "Mr. Knauss," Mr. Moore continued, "raised $5,500 in 24 hours."

"There was nothing secret about it, was there?" Senator Kenyon asked.

"Not then, but there is now," Mr. Moore retorted. "That was before you had started your investigation and Governor Cox had made his charges."

"What is your understanding about this Ohio quota?" Chairman Kenyon asked.

"My understanding is that Cincinnati was to raise $200,000; Cleveland, $400,000; Youngstown, $50,000."

"Where did you get your information?" "These gentlemen I have named can tell you all about it. Dayton was to raise $60,000; Akron, $50,000—you understand these quotas were revised from time to time, and like Taft with the tariff, they usually revised them upwards," Toledo, $100,000; Canton, $50,000, and at Lima, a man whose name I will give you later, collected $15,000 that I know of. How much more I don't know."

Fred W. Upham, Republican national treasurer, who was an interested spectator, interrupted to tell Mr. Moore that Ohio had raised $118,000 before the convention and $150,227 since. The witness started a spirited exchange with Mr. Upham, while Senator Kenyon vainly sought to restore order.

"I understand, Mr. Upham," he said, "that your quota to Ohio was $400,000, but you revised it upwards later to $500,000."

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The senate committee investigating presidential campaign expenditures, reopened its session here today. E. H. Moore, personal representative of Governor Cox, and principal witness at today's hearing, was prepared, he said, to give the committee all "leads" and information the Democratic candidate has concerning the Republican campaign fund.

Mr. Moore came here last Tuesday, expecting to testify then, but the committee adjourned until today, and in the intervening time Mr. Moore has been in Chicago. On Sunday he conferred with Governor Cox, while he was in the city, and said he had obtained full information to "prove that Republican leaders had openly boasted that they had devised a fund-raising plan which would bring in at least $1,000,000 for the campaign fund."

The members of the committee arrived this morning. Mr. Moore declared that he was prepared to furnish the names of men who "could give the most minute details concerning the Republican fund-raising plans."

Mr. Moore has already placed several documents in the hands of the committee and as a result more than a dozen persons have been summoned to testify. Definite announcements as to who these are, has not been made.

Whether or not the Illinois coal operators, who Governor Cox charged, have been asked to contribute $500,000 to the Republican fund, will be called as witnesses could not be learned, but it was generally thought that at least some of them would testify during the hearings. J. K. Dettler, named by the governor, as the man who asked the coal dealers to subscribe this sum, has already denied the charges, although he admitted that from $150,000 to $200,000 was raised among the coal dealers for the Republican fund.

Another interesting phase of the investigation is expected to come up at the present session, with the personal charges made by Congressman Royal Johnson, of South Dakota, that five employees in the internal revenue office of his state were asked to subscribe $10 each to the Democratic campaign fund.

dealers who, the commission asserted, have illegally increased prices.

Its investigation, the trade commission declared, disclosed that between 1914 and 1918, prices of farm implements advanced 73 percent. Advances in the cost and expenses of manufacturers and dealers did not warrant, the commission said, an increase of this amount.

Discussing methods which the commission charges officers and members of implement manufacturers' associations used to bring about and maintain high price levels, the report states that

"price comparison meetings" were held at which "advances in prices recently made or intended to be made, were discussed."

Meetings also were held, it is charged, at which "inflated costs were compared with the actual understanding that prices would be advanced the same percentage shown by the inflated costs," and at which "agreements were made respecting uniform terms," and the "standardization of implements and equipment."

The commission's report further states that members of manufacturers' associations made use of "secret" exchange of price lists by mail, so that members could check up on each other's prices, terms and equipment furnished," and that letters were sent "urging low-price members to increase their prices."

"By these methods" the commission asserts, "beginning with meetings held in February, 1915, and continuing through 1918, the manufacturers obtained at uniform percentages of increases to be applied first to one and then another line of implements."

"That the officers and members of the manufacturers' associations reduced their report on compliance," that they were engaged in illegal activities is indicated by the attempted secrecy they sought to throw over all price activities."

The above is an endorsement from a woman whose profession constantly drugsists everywhere.

FALLS BENEATH CARS; BODY IS CUT IN TWAIN

Cecil B. Chinn Conductor In Whitaker-Glessner Yards Instantly Killed Monday

Falling between two gondola cars ten minutes before his day's work was done Cecil B. Chinn, employed as a conductor in the yards of the Whitaker-Glessner plant, met instant death at 5:50 Monday afternoon. His body was cut in twain and his left arm severed. There were no eye witnesses to the accident, which occurred in the south yard of the big plant. It was the first fatality in the plant since a year ago last Decoration Day.

Yardmaster Reynolds and Engineer George Martin saw Chinn climb on his train but they did not see him fall. When his body was found it was lying mutilated and lifeless near the spot where he had met a tragic death. Chinn was making his last trip and ten minutes later he would have been on his way home when fate decreed that his life should be snuffed out so cruelly.

Cecil B. Chinn was 23 years old and was the son of Thomas Chinn of Ironton. In addition to his father he leaves his heartbroken wife, Mrs. Evelyn Foster Chinn whom he married on June 25 last.

The deceased also leaves one brother, Justin Harlin Chinn of Newport, Ky., and two sisters, Mary Elizabeth and Carrie, who make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Chinn, their residence being 4012 1-2 Rhode avenue New Boston.

Mr. Chinn had been located here for three years and had been a faithful employee of the Whitaker-Glessner company for more than a year. He was very industrious, made friends rapidly and will be missed. His employers stated today that Mr. Chinn was thoroughly reliable, conscientious and always was on the job.

Coroner J. D. Hendrickson viewed the body at the Daehler morgue last night and stated that he would give his verdict later. Mr. Chinn's watch was found running and it was turned over to his wife.

AUTO RUNS OVER BOY

Charles, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Summerson, 423 Offene street, was run down and seriously injured at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon by an automobile driven by J. H. Coldiron, shoemaker, 1609 Fifth street.

The accident occurred about 25 yards south of Sixth and Offene streets, and near the Summerson home.

The rear right wheel of the machine passed over the abdomen of the child, badly crushing the body. His knees and arms were badly bruised.

He was picked up and carried into his home by Tom Riggs, 1114 Third street, and Quincy Hughes, 315 Offene street. Drs. A. J. Test and H. M. Kell were called. The lad was removed later to Hempstead Hospital, where Dr. T. G. McCormick, A. L. Test and H. M. Kell performed an operation on the boy. They found him to be suffering with internal hemorrhages and multiple bruises about the arms and legs.

At the hospital he was reported as resting well last night, although his injuries are considered serious.

According to Tom Riggs, Quincy Hughes, Tom Bellert, 1602 Fifth street, and James Foley, 1637 Fourth street, who witnessed the regrettable accident, Coldiron was driving south on Sixth street, at a slow rate of speed and had crossed the intersection of Sixth street. An Overland automobile was parked beside the Donaldson apartment house, obstructing the view to the short driveway of the garage behind the apartment building. The lad, as has been the practice of many children, in that neighborhood, started down the incline on his tricycle, and darted directly into the path of the approaching machine. Coldiron swerved his car sharply to the left, but not before the lad had driven into the machine, and was upset and thrown beneath the car. The rear right wheel passed over his body and velocipede, witnesses say.

Coldiron stopped his machine in the length of the car, the witnesses say, and helped carry the lad into his home, a few doors south on Offene street.

The mother of the child was prostrated and required the aid of a physician. Mr. and Mrs. Summerson spent the night at the bedside of the child at Hempstead Hospital.

School Days

Boys and girls will soon be trudging to and from school. They must be properly shod for they cannot do school work unless they wear comfortable, well-fitting shoes. And their shoes must be made of long wearing materials to stand hard knocks and scuffs.

Don't try to economize by seeing how cheap you can buy them, but buy good shoes at fair prices. They last longer.

Boy Hurt In Auto Crash

Engine Kinney, 10, of Dayton, whose parents are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Stalger, 1113 Eighth street, was seriously injured when a Franklin automobile in which he was riding and a Ren machine driven by Harry Malone collided at Kinney's Lane and the School Trail Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Kinney was standing the front seat with his father, James Kinney, who was driving when the collision occurred. The wind shield was crushed by the force of the impact and flying glass cut the boy on the forehead, arms and body. He also received a large gash on the right arm, his head was cut and face badly bruised. He was carried into Hempstead Hospital, a short distance north of the accident, by Harry Cunningham, where his injuries were treated.

According to the story told by the occupants of the machine, the Kinney automobile was going north on the School Trail and the Malone car was traveling west on Kinney's Lane when both machines collided at the intersection. The machines were badly damaged. No other occupants of either machine were injured.

The Kinney family had just arrived here from Ironton Sunday, and were on their way to Dayton, when the accident occurred.

The Stitches and Chatter Club will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. W. A. Gray of 1809 Grandview avenue.

COAL FLEET PASSING

The advanced guard of the "coal fleet" has been riding the "coal wave" passed here today, after a delay for last night. The fleet comprises the Catherine Davis, W. K. Field, D. T. Lane, Oscar Marmet, Julius Pilschmann and the W. T. Smoot, the last named with a tow of pipe for the lower Mississippi. The Sallie Marquet and J. T. Hatfield are reported to be following.

This fleet was held up at Dam No. 31, which was to be lowered to permit the passage of the boats without locking, but rains caused the running out of the Sdoto, which caused a stage of 13.5 feet. As the water was nearly a foot over the top of the wickets, it was impossible to lower the dam, and had this been done there was danger of flooding the coffer dam protecting the work on the uncompleted lower guide wall of the lock.

The boats are locking their tows through as rapidly as they can, but the process is made difficult because the coffer dam obstructs the lower outlet of the lock.

The dam will be lowered as soon as the river falls sufficiently. R. F. Thomas, Assistant United States Engineer, who is in charge of the "wave" was on the scene, and entertains no fear that the artificial rise will get past the boats.

"I AM STRONGER NOW THAN FOR TEN YEARS"

This Woman Tells How
How Vola-Tonic
Brought Back Her
Strength and Health—
Housework Easy
Now.

"I'm stronger now than I have been for ten years, and it is all due to taking Vola-Tonic," said Mrs. Mollie Shore, 1221 Jackson street, Cincinnati, Ohio, recently in discussing the improvement this new medicine had brought her.

"For ten years I suffered with rheumatism in my right arm. I got so at times that I couldn't even use my arm. The pain was so bad that I couldn't lift a glass of water or a cup of coffee.

"My stomach was all out of order for a long time also. I didn't have any appetite and the little food I did eat caused my stomach and didn't agree with me.

"I also had an attack of influenza last spring and when I got up I was very weak. I could hardly get around or do my housework and the neighbors didn't think I'd ever get well. "I've taken a lot of medicines but this Vola-Tonic is the only one that ever helped me.

"The first improvement I noticed after I started taking Vola-Tonic was that the rheumatic pains were leaving my arms. They had left entirely by the time I had finished the first bottle of Vola-Tonic.

"Vola-Tonic helped my stomach, so I have an excellent appetite now and can eat steak or potatoes or anything I want without a bit of trouble afterward.

"In short I am stronger and healthier in every way."

Hundreds of Portsmouth men and women recommend Vola-Tonic just as highly as this Cincinnati woman does. Thousands of bottles of Vola-Tonic have been sold in this section and the results Vola brought those who took it prove it is just the medicine needed to run down men and women need. Don't hesitate longer. Get a bottle of Vola-Tonic TODAY and get back strength and good health.

VOLA-TONIC, "Builder of Strength" is sold in Portsmouth by Fisher & Streich and all good druggists.

FIRES THREE BULLETS AT HUSBAND

Police are looking for Charles Drummond, colored, who it is alleged was first upon three times by his wife, Lila Drummond, 1025 Gay street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

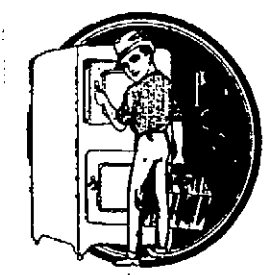

According to the police, the man slapped his wife, who secured a 38 caliber revolver and fired one shot at him through the window, and two more from the outside of the house.

It is not known whether any of the bullets took effect. The negro made good his escape, and has not been seen since.

Police hesitated to detain the woman because she is in no condition to be placed in prison. They say, however, that a charge may be placed against her as soon as her husband is apprehended.

Officers Schroeder and Lewis were detailed to work on the case.

Reds Defeat Cardinals; Back In First Place

Well, those Joyous Redlegs made one sweet gain yesterday as while they were handing the Cardinals a double beating Brooklyn lost two games to the slugging Phils and the best New York could do with the Beantown crew was to halve a double header.

The Reds are sure to go away in first place and open their last swing around the Eastern circuit in Boston on Wednesday.

STARS WIN TWO GAMES FROM WILLIAMSON

Everfeld's Stars copped both of their engagements at Williamson, taking the home team down the line to the tune of nine to 0 in the Sunday contest and annexing the Labor Day battle 14 to 4. Spence was in great form in the Sunday game, holding the enemy from the plate over the entire distance aided by fine support of his backers.

Townsend started the Monday game but he was replaced by Walts, who finished it out in fine style.

Two big crowds saw the pastime, Sunday's game being witnessed by over 5,000 fans while the attendance yesterday nearly as large.

Manager Everfeld and his players arrived home over the N. and W. last night and all were loud in their praise of the splendid treatment accorded them by the Williamson management and the fans.

Karl Zoeller left Monday on a motor trip to Lima, where he will attend the annual meeting of the Ohio State Elks' Association, which will be in session there several days.

Don't Be Bald

How to Make Hair Grow Strong, Thick and Lustrous
Few of us get half in a day, and we all have ample warning when our hair is thinning out.

Parisian sage is a most efficient hair invigorator, but to quickly stop any further loss of hair and promote a new growth it must be rubbed into the scalp so the starved hair roots can really absorb it and get the vital stimulation so badly needed.

You will surely be delighted with the first application; for gone hair and scalp should look and feel 100 per cent better.

Parisian sage is not expensive. It's a scientific preparation that supplies hair needs—a clean, non-sticky, antiseptic liquid that is sold by "Wurster Bros. and at good drug stores everywhere, with guarantee to give you perfect satisfaction or money refunded.

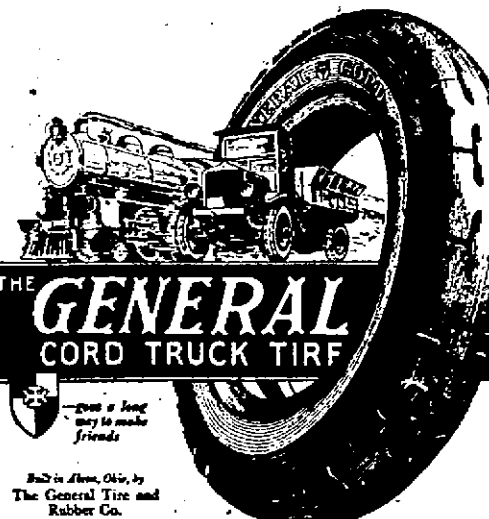

Good-looking hair is half the battle in any man's or woman's personal appearance. Neglect means dull, thin, dead-looking hair and finally baldness, while a little attention now should insure thick and lustrous hair for years to come.

No matter what your hair troubles, try a Parisian sage massage tonight—you will not be disappointed.

Fast-Freight Tires That Ease the Way for Trucks

Just as steel rails lift the load, smooth the road and lighten the pull for the swift locomotive, so General Cord Truck Tires are fast-freight tires that ease the way for trucks. Slow-freight tonnage can crawl on solid tires in limited areas where the road permits. But where time, territory and roughness are conditions of fast-freighting, the truck must carry its load with it—it must have tires of minimum friction that deliver speed and distance with extra endurance. The General Cord Truck Tire is a rail on the rim—their life, lightness, smoothness and speed.

With the rapid extension in the use of trucks, the fleet owner is making no mistake in following the reputation that General Cord Truck Tires have made for themselves.

THE MOVIES

Tonight the Eastland Theatre Offers the Most Exceptional Double Program Ever Shown in Portsmouth—Man Allison in "The Cheater," A Fascinating Romance That Challenges Thought—A Picture of the Same Order as "The Miracle Man" and Larry Simon, The One and Only Comedy King in "The Stage Hand," A Big-Hearted Bombshell of Joy in Two Rolling Acts

The management of the Eastland is pleased to present for its attractions tonight the most exceptional double program ever offered here, the first Mae Allison, the charming Gollifut Metro star in "The Cheater" based on the celebrated stage success by Henry Arthur Jones. A fascinating romance that challenges thought—vibrant, with suspense and tingling with mystery. "The Cheater" is a picture on the same order as "The Miracle Man" and promises to furnish unusual entertainment to all who see it. Second comes the one and only comedy star, Larry Simon, the man who has made more people laugh within the last month than any man on the screen in his very newest comedy "The Stage Hand."

He has let loose another riot of mirth in the "Stage Hand." It is a burlesque on the life behind the scenes in which more comedy is produced than was ever inflicted on an audience before. It is almost impossible to witness a showing of "The Stage Hand" and not be doubled up with laughter.

The comedy is filled with surprises. The unexpected is always occurring. A monkey shows almost human intelligence and adds much to the fun. The funny incidents that make up the two reels are too numerous to mention. You will enjoy it and advise your friends to see it. Come and see these two big pictures tonight 8:30 and 8:30.

WOMEN LIKE CARPENTIER

Take It From Florence Billings, Who Has Important Part in His Film Success, "The Wonder Man"

He is Some Heart-Breaker

Take it from Florence Billings, who is being featured in his first American motion picture production, women will go wild over Georges Carpentier. The French idol is the star of "The Wonder Man," the Robertson-Cole super-special at the Lyric Theatre Monday.

"It's a good job he married before he reached these shores," said Miss Billings to an interviewer in the studio when the production was being made. "He's an awful heart-breaker."

"Why do you say that?" she was asked.

"Why? Look at him! Any woman who has an ounce of red blood in her veins would want to meet him. He is a great, big, handsome boy and the very type that women rave about. That's why I'm raving."

"There's something fascinating about him. He keeps one in the throes of expectancy. The very fact that he speaks so little English adds the anticipatory delight. One is always expecting him to do or say a little more than he actually does. It's the first time in my life that I ever regretted I didn't study French."

"I'm single and happy. But if I could ever be married and happy it would be with a man like Georges Carpentier. He is the best product of France and the French have turned out some wonderful productions. More than that, I like him because he is more proud of his bride than he is of his reputation, and that's going some, when one has a reputation like Carpentier's."

THE NEW STYLES

Are charming and original. Striking tailored dresses of serge and tricotine, beautifully hand embroidered with touches of bright colored floss. Silk frocks of satin, charmeuse and georgette combinations, with large crepe collars and long waisted bellies silhouette. We'll be pleased to show you through this distinctive collection.

SUITS

Are of chief interest to women kind, now that the days are growing shorter and the weather much cooler. We are thoroughly prepared for the new season and will take delight in showing you the new garments even though you have no intention of buying. Come in for style information only. No woman or miss should overlook the Atlas when shopping for a new suit or dress.

DRESSES

Are exquisite this season. They are developed in Yalana, duvet de laine, peach bloom, duvety, serge, velour and tricotine. Some are beautifully hand embroidered, some strikingly braided and some have collars and cuffs of Australian opossum, marten, sealine or coney. Come and see them.

406 Chillicothe Street Where Women Go

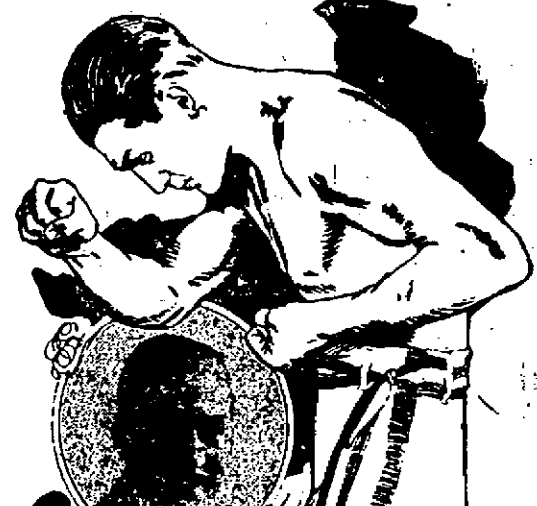

LOUISE GLAUM in "THE LONE WOLF'S DAUGHTER"

Gorgeous Gowns for Women's Eye. Thrills Aplenty for the Men and a Wonderful Story for All Make Up "The Lone Wolf's Daughter," at the Temple Tonight

An unusual production is "The Lone Wolf's Daughter," which comes to the Temple tonight. Louise Glaum is the star and the collection of wonderful gowns she wears is said to be the most costly ever exhibited in a picture.

The picture itself is from a crook-mystery story by Louis Joseph Vance and it is replete with action and suspense, the big thrills coming when the star dances in a tight on a derelict propelled from an ocean steamer, and when she is forced to battle for her life with real flames.

A two reel Sunshine comedy screen completes the show, and the admission price will not be raised.

GEORGES CARPENTIER in "The Wonder Man"

Lyric, Tonight and Tomorrow. Carpentier, Star, of "Wonder Man" is a Beau Brummell. Idol of the French is as Careful a Dresser as He is Skillful at Boxing—His Wardrobe a Revelation.

A pugilist who prefers grand opera to rag time, the serious drama to musical comedy, a quiet evening at home with his wife to hitting the high spots of the gay white ways of the world, and correct, well-tailored tailcoat to the flashy clothes commonly worn by members of his profession, is a pugilist out of the ordinary. Such a pugilist is Georges Carpentier, idol of France and Jean Brummell of fighters.

Carpentier, whose gentlemanly qualities won for him a contract with Robertson-Cole, leaders in the motion picture world, which will net him thousands of American dollars, is such a fine dresser that when Robertson-Cole faced the problem of selecting a play for him they solved it by casting him in an American society drama as a gentleman-pugilist with a penchant for evening clothes and smart afternoon attire.

That the motion picture people knew what they were doing is attested by the fact that when Georges landed at New York from Paris with his trunk of three weeks he brought along thirty-five trunks, the contents of which included:

One fur coat.
Three for coats.
Twenty overcoats.
Thirty pairs of shoes.
Fifty suits.
Seventy-five silk shirts, with separate soft collars to match.
Two hundred neckties and cravats.
The bodies of interviewers who met him on the ship and at his six room suite at the Hotel Biltmore, which are in the history of the world, which are in the history of the world, which are in the history of the world.

"That is the style in London and Paris," he said. "If one would dress well he must follow the styles."

And Tuckers.

And Tuckers says that after a week's success in getting her husband dressed up just the way she wants, she is able to look him over and wish he was a cat man.

Corinne Griffith in "The Climbers"

Lincoln Tonight. Double Bill. Corinne Griffith in "The Climbers." She Wears Wonderful Gowns in This Picture. Also Antonio Moreno in Serial Feature.

Another demonstration of how the climbing, shallow spirited man can play a game in love and defeat easily a more earnest, whole-hearted lover, is presented with dramatic force in Vitaphone's new picture, "The Climbers."

This production, with Corinne Griffith as star, will be shown at the Lincoln tonight.

Michael Sterling, a character played by Hugh Hunter, one of the leading players of the English stage, is the one who plays the game in "The Climbers."

His left, unprincipled processes work an enchantment of Blanch-Hunter, the heroine of the piece, while Neil Warden, a high-minded, earnest lover of the girl, becomes sidetracked and obscured.

"The Climbers" hinges upon the drama of a girl falling, temporarily at least, under the thrall of the wrong man.

Also Antonio Moreno in the feature serial. No advance in prices.

Dempsey Retains Title; Knocksout Miske In Third Round

St. Louis Cardinals Here--Game This Afternoon At 3:30

Champion Jack Was Never In Danger And Won Without Ruffling His Hair; The Rounds

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 7.—Jack Dempsey, super-fighter, made good his promise yesterday afternoon by knocking out the tough Billy Miske in the third round of their scheduled ten rounds.

It was one of the easiest triumphs of Dempsey's career. Never for a moment was he in danger and through every minute of the fighting he was master of the situation. Miske hardly laid a glove on him during the entire battle, whereas Dempsey gave Miske some terrible body punishment.

A right-hander to the chin brought an end to Miske's championship dream after one minute and thirteen seconds of the third round were over.

The story of the fight is just a story of a super-fighter battling a man right-handed to the chin brought an end to Miske's championship dream after one minute and thirteen seconds of the third round were over.

And, in the first round he flashed his ability and defensive trickery that has not heartened the Carpenter followers. The champion battled Miske at Miske's own style and made Miske look like a boxing novice. He outstepped the St. Paul youth, in fact, ran circles around him. The Dempsey speed was bewildering, and though Miske shot through a score of his famous sliding leads, Dempsey either brushed them away, ducked, or side-stepped.

Apparently one round of the boxing was sufficient to convince Dempsey that he could show a little boxing skill whenever he wanted to. For when the second round opened, a different Jack Dempsey rushed forth. It was Jack Dempsey, the slugging, "the tiger of the ring," intent upon crushing his opponent at the earliest possible moment and how he did it was a sight rather pathetic for the Miske adherents.

Fighting coolly, carefully and yet with a fury, Dempsey tore into Miske. He never swung until he was reasonably certain that he could hit his mark. Miske sensed that the old time Dempsey had stepped fourth and made desperate efforts to cover. But Dempsey was not to be denied his prey. He clipped short rights to the body to slow Miske up a little—then things began to happen.

Very craftily, Dempsey maneuvered Miske into position, like a flash, he let his right to the body. It was the famous Dempsey trick. Miske did not know Dempsey would go through with the punch, but expected him to hook a left to the chin.

So up went Miske's guard, just as Dempsey hoped for. The right hander instead of stopping went straight through and crashed under Billy Miske's heart.

This was the same blow that the Irish mauler had administered to Jess Willard. And that punch likewise felled Billy Miske and meant the end of dreams for him.

Miske went down on his side, but got up under taking a short count. Dempsey, instead of charging furiously and possibly swimming wildly, circled around Miske, hardly hurt and realizing it, reared into a clinch. It required strenuous efforts of the referee to tear him loose.

No sooner were they apart when Miske clinched again, and successfully clinched himself out of danger for the balance of the round.

Miske looked "all in" when he went back to his corner. His body was red and bruised from the short choppy punches in the clinches. An ugly blotch showed under the heart. He was bleeding from the mouth and his face was a flaming red.

As the third bell rang Dempsey pranced out, circled Miske a couple of times so as to talk Miske's clinching intent. He made a bluff rush and stopped "as Miske came in. At once the left flashed to the body followed by a right. Miske's face took on a look of intense pain. Dempsey hooked a short left to the jaw and followed with a short right. As Miske backed away toward his own corner, Dempsey tore at him and flashed out with the famous right hander.

As the punch landed Miske sank to the floor. Dempsey walked away six or eight feet while Jim Douchery counted over him. By a herculean effort and a rare display of gameness, Miske somehow, somehow, got to his feet with the count of nine.

And then Dempsey, unruffled and unhurt, simply walked over and shot the right once more against Miske's jaw. Billy fell in a heap in his own corner and was counted out.

Just as soon as "ten" had been counted, Dempsey ran over to the prostrate Miske, lifted him in his arms, then slung him to his feet and assisted him to his chair. After a brief handshake, Dempsey ran across the ring, picked up his old red sweater, threw it around his shoulders, climbed out of the ring and then ran to his dressing quarters.

Once more Jack Dempsey has proved to the world that he is the greatest fighter—gladiator—and the most terrific puncher of all times.

Muldoons Defeated

The Muldoons, a Portsmouth nine, journeyed to Waverly Monday and were beaten, 6 to 1.

Reno Waverly's star mound artist held the visiting nine in the palm of his hand during the entire nine innings.

NEW ORLEANS, September 7.—Joe Sevel, a shortstop obtained by the New Orleans Southern Association Club from the University of Alabama, left here today to join the Cleveland American League Club to which he had been sold.

Mack And Dilly Main Cogs In Card's Machinery

The countless friends here of Outfielder Austin McHenry and Catcher Dillhoefer of the Cardinals are delighted over the consistent manner in which they have been punishing the pesky pellet.

Mack, is nearing the 300 class and expects to buckle this mark on his club's last Eastern invasion. He is hitting finely as of old and this clean cut athlete is putting up his usual brilliant game in the field. Dilly never caught a better article of ball than he is putting up for Rickey. These boys will be given a great hand in Millbrook this afternoon.

They you their baseball spurs in the local park and will proudly return to the scene of their early triumphs on the Diamond.

Miracle Men Secure Even Break In Ironton

Johnny Grimm's Miracle Men broke even in their two clashes with the Chestnuts at Ironton yesterday, losing the morning combat 4 to 2 and annexing the afternoon battle 8 to 7.

Willie and Horner were the opposing pitchers in the morning conflict, and then ran to his trading quarters. The work of the former being effective in the places.

Mowery performed for the Miracle Men in the afternoon engagement, and while he was touched up rather freely at times he held on with tenacity, and finally came through with good support by his backers, both in the field and at bat.

Fugitt, who started on the mound for the Chestnuts, was knocked off the hill by a fusillade of hits and Willis finished it out.

A feature of the afternoon contest was Thompson's 3-ly smash with the bases full. Immense crowds saw both games.

PORTSMOUTH LOST BOTH GAMES AT MILLBROOK PARK MONDAY

Before a rather abbreviated audience, due mainly to counter-attractions, Portsmouth lost two games, at Millbrook Park Labor Day afternoon, the Elks of Gallipolis taking the local Elks into camp in the curtain raiser 12 to 7, while the Wiedemanns of Newport, Ky., always a hard nut to crack, waxed the All Stars 12 to 4, the game being finished at 6 o'clock, sharp.

In order that Portsmouth's two crack pitchers, Messrs. Donalds and Baughman, might be saved for the big game this afternoon, Manager Brennan used two of his second string twirlers against the Wiedemanns, Messrs. Hollins and Barber, and outside of certain spots both did well.

But the visitors bunched, hits, with the local errors and piled up enough runs to last them for a dozen games or more. On the other hand, while the locals hit Williams with considerable freedom, they were unable to bunch their drives and submitted meekly while he administered his chastisement. The score:

Dempsey scored two knockdowns aside from the knockout.

Dempsey knocked Miske down in the second round with a short right-hander.

He knocked down Miske for the second time in the third, with a right hand to the jaw. As soon as Miske got up, the champion hit him on the same spot with the same right-hander—and Miske was counted out.

Estimated attendance, 20,000, which was the arena capacity.

Estimated receipts $500,000.

Dempsey received $55,000 with the reported privilege of fifty percent of the gross gate.

Miske's "fee" totaled $25,000. Jim Douchery, of Philadelphia, referred the main bout, which was to be ten rounds without decision.

Weather conditions were ideal.

Reds Copped Both Games

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7.—The champions won both the holiday games from the Cardinals Monday by superior all-around play. The long hitting of Groh and Roush produced four runs in the afternoon game, while the visitors could bunch hits off Fisher in only one inning. St. Louis filled the bases with two out in the ninth inning with two hits and a walk when Heather collected Fisher and pinch hitter Jaurin went out on a fly to Neale. Scores:

Harry Groh, of Pittsburgh, who also was a sparring partner in Dempsey's camp, won in the sixth round over Chuck Wiggins.

The letting at ring time was 5 to 1 on Dempsey to win—without takers.

Ohio 5 to 3 that Miske would not last eight rounds also found no takers.

The state boxing commission, of Michigan, has been enriched approximately $20,000 by the right because its share is ten percent of the gross.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, who promoted the show, cleaned up $33,000.

He received $20,000 with a privilege of accepting fifty percent of the receipts.

Miske fought on a straight guarantee of $25,000.

After the knockout it was reported that one of Miske's ribs had been broken by the terrific punch he had received in the second round, but the challenger was examined by two physicians after he reached his training camp and they agreed there was no fracture.

The spot under Miske's heart still was red and sore today from the effects of the punch, which Miske admitted was the blow that really started him toward defeat. His ribs are bruised and his jaw is sore, but otherwise he is none the worse from his experience.

Dempsey did not bear a mark of the battle. After he had dinner with Promoter Fitzsimmons and a party of friends last night, he spent the rest of the evening dancing at a summer pavilion in St. Joseph. He planned to leave for Chicago late this afternoon and will immediately go east in search of new opponents to conquer. From Fitzsimmons declared the contest was a success in every way.

"The house was virtually sold out," he said. "I believe that the few vacant seats that were in the one section were sold by some of the toughs who were unable to arrive on time due to an accident on the railroad."

Miske was heart-broken over his defeat. He left the ring in tears and had hoped to stay the limit with Dempsey, as he had done in their previous engagements. His father and wife were rampant spectators.

Team Given A Joy Ride To Rickey's Farm Home, Big Crowd To See Game

The St. Louis Cardinals, led by Manager Branch Rickey, arrived in Portsmouth, Monday at midnight from Cincinnati, where they dropped both games to the Champion Reds on Labor Day. The team, however, is all together and it is thought will be able to give the city's All Stars a pretty stiff argument this afternoon, when the whole town and surrounding country will be represented by enthusiastic delegates to the great fan fest. Of course a fellow has to be excused in the use of a little sarcasm when a big league team like the Cardinals troop into his town.

When the statement that the team was in fair shape for its grueling game with the Cardinals was made at the hotel at 3:30 this afternoon.

While in the city, the Cardinals are going to be the recipients of the best hand of hospitality of the people. The hospitality will be handed out under the capable direction of the Chamber of Commerce and will consist of an automobile trip through the country, a visit to the Duck Run home of Frank Rickey, the venerable and highly esteemed father of Manager Branch Rickey. When the country home of the senior Mr. Rickey is reached it is expected that Manager Rickey will order the Cardinals to follow him and he will take them on a tour jaunt over the broad and fertile acres and point out to them the many oak trees upon which he carved his name when a boy and point out that tickle-free tree from which he has shot not less than 500 squirrels. Lucas, the center of education activities through the Chamber of Commerce, should not buy tickets at the gate for their tickets will be delivered to them this morning or at the luncheon. A number of tickets were delivered this morning.

Following the luncheon, the Cardinals will hustle to the Washington Hotel where they will dress for the game, and in autos be transferred to Millbrook Park where the game with the All Stars will start at 3:30 o'clock. Judging from the interest that is being taken in the game, the largest crowd that ever saw a game at Millbrook will be present. The day is an ideal one for the game and the grounds are in elegant condition. All in all the visit of the Cardinals in Portsmouth is expected to be of such high character, of such genuine hospitality, that Manager Rickey will decide to make it an annual event.

A MATTER OF APPAREL

APPEARANCES count, it is said, they also count against you. That was the thought that came to us just now and in the advertising columns read a familiar name to an advertisement of a family product that is now known all over the United States. The name brought up a train of reminiscences that ended in the conclusion. A good many years ago we lived in the small town in which the product was first manufactured. We knew well the manufacturer and his family. Now a man of millions, he was by far the richest man in town. His wife was a plain and unpretentious lady. She had occasion to go to a renowned specialist in a big city to have an operation performed. As is the way of great specialists his charges were based on the ability of the patient to pay. He questioned the lady as to the occupation of her husband and she modestly stated he was a miller, not expanding the occupation in any way and the specialist, assuming she meant the mechanic of a flouring mill. The operation was entirely successful and when the village miller's wife returned in perfect health, she, of course, sang the praises of the specialist. Among those who listened to her was a neighbor, who decided she must have a like operation performed. Now her husband was manager of a small business and poor as a church mouse, but she was given to putting on style and boasting. So off to the great specialist she went, togged out in silks and jewelry and when he asked her the occupation of her husband she answered he ran the largest business of the sort in town, which was true, since it was the only one of the sort. The operation was duly performed and when she returned home the two patients compared notes and it was found the renowned specialist had charged the last visitor just five times more than he had the first.

Yes, appearances count, but when you put on your bravest front just remember you should be trying to get something out of the other fellow and not the arrangement such that he is to get all he can out of you.

SPRIT OF RECKLESSNESS

SPRIT of recklessness pervades society today. Reading any daily newspaper, one is impressed by the great number of accidents reported. Many of these are in connection with the operation of automobiles, but not by any means all of them. Burglaries and murders, holdups and illicit trading, with brief reference to politics, furnish topics for the other columns.

The world is moving at a terrific pace. The war that it passed through helped to make its population restless. In this country high prices and high wages have put life on a different scale. A noticeable slump in morals and religion has robbed us of much of our poise and equanimity and made us careless in conduct and regard for law. We are paying a stiff price in the toll of human life and bodily injuries for our spirit of recklessness.

We are anxious to get back to normal in economic relations, but it is far more important that we lay again the foundation of right living and right thinking and right relations to man. And the spirit of recklessness, and in many cases heedlessness, will give way to caution and a regard for the common good when the fundamental cause of our feverish haste is removed.

AND THIS IN BOSTON

THE first newspaper in America was issued two hundred and fifty years ago, come the 25th of September.

It was called "Publick Occurrences," got out just one number, being promptly suppressed by the authorities. It preached no new and strange doctrines, it did not advocate the overthrow of the government, it knew nothing about such a thing as Bolshevism, and it neither had nor expressed any opinions whatsoever. It simply narrated local happenings. But it created consternation, throwing the people into a panic. Such a thing had never been and therefore it should not be. Hence its sudden demise through the power of the state.

There are almost an even hundred papers in the country today for each year elapsed since the first one was printed. Among them are found many with new and strange doctrines and varied opinions. None are suppressed, but a good many ought to be, mostly because they make no energetic effort to be what they ought to be, and so profess, in a feeble sort of way, true enough.

What Europe needs is a few Irish policemen from New York to help her keep the peace.

An honest dealer and a prompt-paying customer make a happy combination in business.

Loose purse-strings are the sign to the profiteer that he can go the limit.

Bolshevism is ignorance in Russia; it is disloyalty in America.

New-York - Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A reigning prince does not flinch the least at the sight of this filthy island. When Prince Carol of Romania, in a glitzy touring car, rolled up Fifth Avenue a messenger, in habiliments the customary two sizes too big, saw him and yelled to a group of newsmen: "Pipe Charlie Chaplin!" The prince wears the conventional tooth-brush mustache so popular among royalty and movie stars.

Not long ago when Prince Edward was here he passed a little shop in the Forties. A young clerk saw the crowd in the rear and called out to a fellow waiting longer across the way: "Who is it?" "A prince," was the reply. "What? Another one?" was the bored reply with a yawn.

New York's idea of a prince is from the fairy books. They want to see the ermine cape, the chevelier boots and jeweled garters. Hotel clerks say that the prince that have stopped here recently are for all the world like the usual type of well bred young sons of the rich.

They are extremely courteous to page boys, clerks and other hotel hangers-on. Prince Edward asked the telephone girl for a lobby booth for a number. She got it and said: "They want to know who it is?" "Tell them Edward Albert of Wales, please." "Oh, you mean the prince!" was the astonished question. And for several minutes the prince chatted pleasantly with the girl. When he left the hotel he ordered a five pound box of candies sent to each operator.

Prince Carol not only saw the candy store and social side of New York, but he also saw that section where night becomes a blime of day. He was at the Midnight Frolic, with a party of 30. At a nearby table was Theda Bara, and at another table Constance Talmadge.

They excited much more attention than the prince. What makes royalty laugh? The same type of joke that appeals to the average American. Prince Carol laughed the heartiest at a musical play where a young lady said to the comedian: "I see the Bolsheviks have taken Minsk and Omsk?"

"Captured Whistler?" said the comedian. He was told again. "Well," he said, "let's forget war and go play some golf."

One of the plants in a Coner Island freak show rides about in an automobile. Owing to its size the space between the seat and the clutch is such that the giant huddles far down in the seat—looking like a very small figure. He was driving up Fifth Avenue the other day talking to a companion and violated a traffic rule. The corner cop yelled at him. The giant thought he was under arrest and started to get out of the car. He weighed about 1,000 pounds and finally his full stature of nearly eight feet was revealed. The cop looked with astonishment and then yelled: "Go on, go on. Get 'em out of here!" And as the car moved away the cop stood and scratched his head.

Opticians along Fifth Avenue say that many American young men are being fitted for monocles. The custom is growing rapidly. Two American actors may be seen in front of the Laubs every noon wearing the English eye glass. The son of a wealthy banker—who began as a railroad fireman—appeared at a Ritz luncheon the other day wearing a monocle. It is laugh now. But who can tell? The wrist watch and bobbed hair have entirely outlived their early ridicule and have become established institutions.

The DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

IN PARIS

Monday, September 6.—Leaving for Paris in the morning. Too tired and excited to write much in my book this evening. Saw and said nothing to Cecil this p. m. He seems awfully jumpy and excited too, about the trip. Must turn in and sleep now.

Wednesday evening.—And Paris smiling and cooing up at me from below! Yes, it's true, we are actually here in the city of lovely nonsense at last. And what a city! Worlds fall me. That trip up from Dieppe yesterday afternoon was too exquisite for description, but I held my breath for sheer delight most of the way. And when the first roofs of Paris came into view, and the spires and domes against the pale saffron and rose evening sky first caught my eyes and heart! Then I knew just what a lucky girl I was to be seeing so much beauty, so very much beauty.

Mother and all of us were equally enchanted by our first glimpse of the City of Love, and as the train swept on, and right into the very heart of it all, I felt something like water all my eyes for joy. I was in Paris, the city of my dreams, at last.

And as we got off the train, and became a part of it all, the pale evening mists and the lights and the warmth of it seemed to open its arms and embrace us in a warm welcome, which is just what I should have expected. We were dead tired, but not for the world could I have turned in without a promenade on the boulevards and a peek into at least one of the many fascinating cafes that I had always read about. So I had my war, and we stopped in at the Cafe Cardinal, on the Boulevard des Italiens, and had a bite, before progressing to our hotel, where we are now safely settled, and all well. Cecilia and her Jeff are never to be seen at least not for long at a time—and I cannot blame them a bit, for I would want my lover all to myself if he were here and we were seeing Paris together for the very first time.

We are in the Hotel Florida, on the Boulevard Malesherbes, right at the beginning of it, and it's a pretty spot not far from the Madeleine. Dear, oh, dear, how many times today I walked by that special corner of Paris, just to sniff the air and watch the people. It's most fascinating, and the flower markets—ah! Such heaps of flowers, such dear apple-scented pastries, and such soft, musical voices as they have, when they thrust a bunch of roses (that are only to be found in Paris) under your nose, and dare you to pass on without them. It can't be done, however.

Oh, that we too had the sense and the soul to turn some of our few squares at home into such beautiful ones as are to be found in Paris, and to offer flowers at a fair price to the whole world, and give all classes and conditions of men and women the chance to take home posies every night of their lives, even as the French people do. It would be ideal.

Of course the very first thing that I did was to drag Aunt Cecilia over to the Luxembourg Gardens this morning. She had to meet Jeff at noon, not far from there (as he is showing her the Latin quarter), so she agreed to take me where I wished to go. I told mother not to worry, for I would take a taxi home, and not be alone on the streets, if I could help it. So off we went, and there was something to live for. I can tell you. When I saw my beloved Manet, and Monet, and those wonderful works of Rodin's, set down on a railing and had a real cry. It's a good thing that the French are emotional themselves or the guards and a few others might easily have thought I was crazy or something! I am the happiest girl imaginable tonight—in spite of all heartaches. (To be continued.)

GORDON WOODBURY

Gordon Woodbury has taken up his duties at Washington as assistant secretary of the navy, succeeding Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for vice-president. Mr. Woodbury, who is fifty-six years old, was at one time editor of the Manchester, N. H., Union, and is a graduate of Harvard and of the Columbia School Law. He has served in the New Hampshire legislature, and was a member of the constitutional convention of the state in 1900.

Mr. Woodbury is said to have long been an advocate of woman suffrage. He has been a Democratic leader in his state and was a candidate for congress in 1916, and a delegate to the last Democratic convention, where he served as a member of the resolutions committee.

During the World war, Mr. Woodbury was a Red Cross officer in France.

Mr. Woodbury's great uncle, Levi Woodbury, was secretary of the navy in Jackson's administration. His uncle, Gordon Woodbury, was an officer of the U. S. S. Catskill and was killed in the attack on Fort Wagner, Charleston Harbor, in 1863. Gustavus Fox, who was assistant secretary of the navy under Grover Cleveland, was his cousin.

Bird Songs at Pairing Season.

The tender emotions of the pairing season urge almost all birds, however unprofitable in matrimony, to become troubadours for the time being—even from such birds as sandpipers, stilts, and others, the season calls forth a tribute of song. This often takes the form of a trill executed as the bird descends through the air, with wings upraised and trembling.

BILLY WHISKER

BY FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

Time after time the tiger tried to get hold of Billy, but the goat was too quick for him, though each time they met one or the other of them got a mark. At last Billy felt that he was nearly whipped. The two animals were now facing each other for another spring. The tiger, too, was suffering from the last hook that Billy had given him, but he was freer than the goat. Billy swayed on his feet. The light seemed to turn into darkness before his eyes and he felt as if he were sinking down, down on a soft bed, but he kept his head bent in the tiger's direction. He felt rather than saw the tiger spring once more, and in spite of his weakened condition he braced himself up and gave one more sharp hard toss of his strong neck. His horn caught the tiger right behind the front shoulder blade and pressed deeply in. This time he had found a vital spot. The tiger rolled over on his side and after a quiver or two, lay still. He was dead, but Billy did not know it, for the brave little goat had sunk to the floor with the tiger and lay motionless as his dead enemy. The animal men came running up first, the one with the revolver in front of the others. Holding his revolver pointed straight to where he knew it would reach the animal's heart, he approached as slowly and cautiously as a cat creeping up to a mouse hole, felt the tiger's side and pronounced him really dead. Two of the men dragged the tiger away and the others crowded around the poor goat. At first they thought that he too was dead, but when they examined him they found that his heart was still beating slowly. One of them ran to bring water and another to get bandages.

When Billy woke up his wounds had been nicely washed, ointment had been applied to them, and bandages were carefully bound over them. The men

Eight-year-old Robert had been ill for nearly a month with tonsillitis, and nothing kept him contented but pictures of his favorite, Charlie Chaplin, clipped from the pages of the motion-picture pictorials.

One morning, as his mother sat beside his bed, he studied earnestly a full page drawing of the million-dollar comedian.

"Mother," he asked, "will Charlie Chaplin go to heaven?"

"Why, yes—I hope so," answered the somewhat astonished parent.

"Gee won't the Lord have some fun then," was Robert's comment.—Harper's Magazine.

E. H. MOORE PREPARED TO GIVE FUND PROBERS 'LEADS' AND INFORMATION

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The senate committee investigating presidential campaign expenditures, requested its session here today. E. H. Moore, personal representative of Governor Cox, and principal witness at today's hearing, was prepared, he said, to give the committee all "leads" and information the Democratic candidate has concerning the Republican campaign fund.

Mr. Moore came here last Tuesday, expecting to testify then, but the committee adjourned until today, and in the intervening time Mr. Moore has been in Chicago. On Sunday he conferred with Governor Cox, while he was in the city, and said he had obtained full information to "prove that Republican leaders had openly boasted that they had devised a fund-raising plan which would bring in at least $100,000,000 for the campaign fund."

The members of the committee arrived this morning.

Mr. Moore declared that he was prepared to furnish the names of men who "could give the most minute details concerning the Republican fund-raising plans."

Mr. Moore has already placed, several documents in the hands of the committee and as a result more than a dozen persons have been summoned to testify. Definite announcement as to who these are, has not been made.

Whether or not the Illinois coal operators, who Governor Cox charged, have been asked to contribute $50,000 to the Republican fund, will be called as witnesses could not be learned, but it was generally thought that at least some of them would testify during the hearings.

J. K. Dooling, named by the governor, as the man who asked the coal dealers to subscribe this sum, has already denied the charges, although he admitted that from $15,000 to $20,000 was raised among the coal dealers for the Republican fund.

Another interesting phase of the investigation is expected to come up at the present session, with personal charges made by Congressman Royal Johnson, of South Dakota, that girl employees in the internal revenue office of his state were asked to subscribe $40 each to the Democratic campaign fund. Congressman Johnson, it was said, has sent to Senator Kenyon, chairman of the committee, evidence to support his claim.

Cox Reaches North Dakota

GRAND FORKS, N. D., September 7.—Three addresses in North Dakota, were on the schedule today of Governor Cox, Democratic candidate for president, who arrived in Grand Forks this morning from the Twin Cities on his western tour.

A half hour stop-over here between 6:30 and 9 a. m. was planned by the governor. From here he goes to Devils Lake, arriving there shortly before noon. Alton will be reached late in the afternoon and Governor Cox will make a night speech there.

The next stop will be Wednesday afternoon at Havre, Montana.

No Change In Miners Strike

SCRANTON, PA., September 7.—No marked improvement was noted in the lockout situation in the Lackawanna region today, morning reports indicating that more men are away from the mines than was the case last week.

The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western officials looked for no change today following the holiday, but announced that nearly all their mills will be working tomorrow.

The Pennsylvania coal officials at Dunmore said No. 1 mine of the company at that place is practically idle today, but that many more men have gone back to work in the Pittston district. The company officials are confident that the offer made to the men to adjust the contract system immediately on the return of the men to work will be accepted. The men of this company have been on strike for two months.

VELVET AND DUVETYN HATS VIE FOR FIRST PLACE THIS FALL

The hat at the upper right is a youthful and jaunty model made of tan duvetyne embroidered in gold thread. It is a variation of the tan shape and is one of the most popular of the new styles. Just below it is a black velvet turban, a shape which always holds its own in every season. This one is exquisitely trimmed with one long ostrich plume placed at a smart angle at the back and drooping over the cheek. The smart little turban at the lower left is brown velvet with the pleated trim embroidered in gold yarn and two gold tassels to form the trimming. This makes a very neat little hat for the school girl and may be worn now or later. It is good for wear with either suit or coat and is especially youthful and charming. Black velvet makes the hat at the upper left. A wreath of velvet leaves edged with silver encircles the crown and the silver also edges the brim. This hat is smart for formal and afternoon wear.

MATEWAN DEPUTIES ARE READY FOR TRIAL

WILLIAMSON, W. VA., September 7.—Council for twenty-three citizens of Mingo county who are facing indictments, each containing seven counts, charging murder in connection with the Matewan riots on May 10, indicated here that they would be ready to go to trial when the cases are called. A statement to this effect was made by John J. Conniff, of Wheeling, who is associated with Harold W. Houston, of Charleston, and Thomas West, of Williamson, in the defense of S. H. Hatfield and other alleged slayers of seven Baldwin-Felts detectives. Mr. Conniff also stated that the defense would probably elect to have all of the accused men face trial together, thus saving time and expense. John S. Marcum and S. B. Aris, of Charleston, who with Prosecuting Attorney Wade H. Brownson and others represent the state, indicated this evening that a decision as to a readiness for trial would depend largely on developments of tomorrow morning.

Marcum said the defense would have the privilege of electing whether or not the accused should go to trial individually or collectively. Conniff said the state also had this privilege.

—Judge Dunston is said to have held that the privilege of election rests with the defense alone. In this connection there is a report from sources close to one of the defendants that he will ask for a separate trial.

Dempsey Retains Title; Knockout Miske In Third Round

St. Louis Cardinals Here--Game This Afternoon At 3:30

Champion Jack Was Never In Danger And Won Without Ruffling His Hair; The Rounds

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 7.—Jack Dempsey, super-fighter, made good his word Monday afternoon by knocking out the tough Billy Miske in the third round of their scheduled ten rounds.

It was one of the easiest triumphs of Dempsey's career. Never for a moment was he in danger and through every minute of the fighting he was master of the situation. Miske hardly hit a glove on him during the entire battle, whereas Dempsey gave Miske some terrible body punishment.

A right-hander to the chin brought an end to Miske's championship dream after one minute and thirteen seconds of the third round was over.

The story of the fight is just a story of a super-fighter battling a man eight fully outclassed. If Dempsey had not elected to box with Miske in the first round, he could have won the title in the first round, but he elected to slug it out with Miske, probably with the idea of letting himself out for a match at some future date with Georges Carpentier, the widely heralded France speed marvel.

And, in Dempsey's behalf, it can be said that in the first round he flashed boxing ability and defensive trickery that has not heartened the Carpentier followers. The champion battled Miske at Miske's own style—and made Miske look like a boxing novice. He outstayed the St. Paul youth, in fact, ran circles around him. The Dempsey speed was bewildering, and though Miske shot through a score of his famous jabbing leads, Dempsey either brushed them away, ducked, or side-stepped.

Apparently one round of the boxing was sufficient to convince Dempsey that he could show a little boxing skill whenever he wanted to. For when the second round opened, a different Jack Dempsey rushed forth. It was Jack Dempsey, the slugger. "The tiger of the prize ring" intent upon crushing his foe at the earliest possible moment. And how he did it was a sight rather pathetic for the Miske adherents.

Fighting coolly, carefully and yet with a fury, Dempsey tore into Miske. He never swung until he was reasonably certain that he could hit his mark. Miske sensed that the old time Dempsey had stepped fourth and made desperate efforts to cover. But Dempsey was not to be denied his prey. He whipped short rights to the body to show Miske up a little—then things began to happen.

Very craftily, Dempsey maneuvered Miske into position like a flash, he led his right to the body. It was the famous Dempsey trick. Miske did not figure Dempsey would go through with the punch, but expected him to hook a left to the chin.

"So up went Miske's guard, just as Dempsey hoped for. The right hander instead of stopping went straight through and crashed under Billy Miske's heart."

This was the same blow that the title mauler had administered to Jess Willard. And that punch likewise floored Billy Miske and meant the end of dreams for him.

Miske went down on his side, but got up under taking a short count. Dempsey, instead of charging furiously and possibly swinging wildly, circled around Miske, badly hurt and reeling, it, leaped into a clinch. It required strenuous efforts of the referee to tear him loose.

No sooner were they apart when Miske clinched again, and successfully eluded himself out of danger for the balance of the round.

Miske looked "all in" when he went back to his corner. His body was red and bruised from the short choppy Dempsey punches in the clinch. An ugly blotch showed under the heart. He was bleeding from the mouth and his face was a flaming red.

As the third bell rang Dempsey paraded out, circled Miske a couple of times so as to talk Miske's clinching talent. He made a bluff rush and stopped, as Miske came in. At once the left flashed to the body followed by a right. Miske's face took on a look of intense pain. Dempsey hooked a short left to the jaw and followed with a short right. As Miske backed away toward his own corner, Dempsey tore at him and flashed out with the famous right hand hook. As the punch landed Miske sank to the floor. Dempsey walked away six or eight feet while Jim Danaherly counted over him. By a herculean effort and a rare display of gameness, Miske somehow, somehow, got to his feet with the count of nine.

And then Dempsey, untroubled and unhurt, defiantly walked over and shot the right once more against Miske's jaw. Billy fell in a heap in his own corner and was counted out.

Just as soon as "ten" had been chanted, Dempsey ran over to the prostrate Miske, lifted him in his arms, then steadily Billy to his feet and assisted him to his chair. After a brief handshake, Dempsey ran across the ring, picked up his old red sweater, threw it around his shoulders, climbed out, and then ran to his training quarters.

Once more Jack Dempsey has proved to the world that he is the greatest fighter, the greatest and the most terrific puncher of all times.

The countless talents here of Outfielder Austin McHenry and Catcher Dillhofer of the Cardinals are de-lighted over the consistent manner in which they have been punishing the pecky pollet.

Mack is nearing the 500 class and expects to hurdle this mark on his club's last Eastern invasion. He is hitting timely as of old and his clean cut athlete is putting up his usual brilliant game in the field. Dilly never caught a better article of ball than he is putting up for Rickey. ### Miracle Men Secure Even Break In Ironton

Johnny Graham's Miracle Men broke even in their two clashes with the Chasties at Ironton yesterday, losing the morning combat 4 to 2 and annexing the afternoon battle 8 to 7.

Willis and Horner were the opposing pitchers in the morning conflict, the work of the former being effective in the pinches.

Mowery performed for the Miracle Men in the afternoon engagement, and while he was touched up rather freely at times he held on with tenacity, and finally came through with good support by his backers, both in the field and at bat.

Fugitt, who started on the mound for the Chasties, was knocked off the hill by a fusillade of hits and Willis finished it out.

A feature of the afternoon contest was Thompson's spiky smash with the bases full. Immense crowds saw both games.

Reds Copped Both Games

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7.—The champions won both the holiday games from the Cardinals Monday by superior out-of-play. St. Louis filled the bases with two out in the ninth, but Roush relieved Fisher and Finch Hitter Janvin went out on a fly to Neale. Score:

Team Given A Joy Ride To Rickey's Farm Home, Big Crowd To See Game

The St. Louis Cardinals, led by Manager Branch Rickey, arrived in Portsmouth, Monday at midnight from Cincinnati, where they dropped both games to the Champion Reds on Labor Day. The team, however, is all together and it is thought will be able to give Gabe's All Stars a pretty stiff argument this afternoon, when the whole town and surrounding country will be represented by enthusiastic delegates to the great fan fest. Of course a follow has to be expected in the use of a little sarcasm when a big league team like the Cardinals troop into his town—then the statement that the team was in fair shape for its grueling game with Gabe's boys at the park, beginning at 3:30 this afternoon.

While in the city, the Cardinals are going to be the recipients of the best brand of hospitality of the people. The hospitality will be handed out under the capable direction of the Chamber of Commerce and will consist of an automobile trip through the country, a visit to the Duck Run home of Frank Rickey, the venerable and highly esteemed father of Manager Branch Rickey. When the country home of the sealer Mr. Rickey is reached it is expected that Manager Rickey will order the Cardinals to follow him and he will take them on a long jaunt over the broad and fertile acres and point out to them the many oak trees upon which he carved his name when a boy and point out that tall hickory tree from which he has shot not less than 500 squirrels. Louisville, the center of education activities when Branch was a youngster, will be visited and the Manager will show his boys all items of interest in Valley township, visiting the log school house, etc., etc.—being a boy again in every sense of the word.

After the automobile trip luncheon will be served at the United Brethren church, where Mayor W. N. Galtman will act as chairman. After luncheon, Manager Rickey will deliver an address and he will be followed by several members of his team. Austin McHenry is expected to tell all about Brush Creek and its tributaries, while "Pickle" Dillhofer is certain to refer to Portsmouth as he knew the city seven or more years ago.

Then will come handshaking and introductions to the league's leading hitters, Roger Hornby, crack infielder of the Cardinals who is touted as the highest priced player in the world. Manager Rickey recently refused $100,000 for Hornby.

Following the luncheon, the Cardinals will hustle to the Washington Hotel where they will dress for the game, and in autos be transferred to Millbrook Park where the game with the All Stars will start at 3:30 o'clock. Judging from the interest that is being taken in the game, the largest crowd that ever saw a game at Millbrook will be present. The day is a break one for the game and the grounds are in elegant condition. All in all the visit of the Cardinals in Portsmouth is expected to be of such high character, of such genuine hospitality, that Manager Rickey will decide to make it an annual event.

All persons entering baseball tickets through the Chamber of Commerce should not buy tickets at the gate for their tickets will be delivered to them this morning or at the luncheon. A large number of tickets were delivered this morning.

Indians Back In Stride; Win 2 From Scrappy Browns

Those Cleveland Indians are back in their stride. They retained first place in the American yesterday by defeating St. Louis a double header. They did not gain on their nearest rivals however as the Tanks copped two and the White Sox whaled the Detroit Tigers to a pair of well earned victories.

Oh it is a merry old race in both leagues this season. Possibly the winner will not definitely loom on the baseball horizon until the frost is on the pumpkin but the fodder is in the shock.

Sparks From Sport Anvil

The faithful old bags of this old town bid Manager Rickey, Fred Hunter, O. Austin McHenry, William Dillhofer and his clever gang of ball tossers a most hearty welcome.

When the Cards smashed the Hindenburg line in June and almost went to the front the fans here pulled long and hard for the Rickeyites.

Their string of victories at that time was pleasing news here. But unfortunately it was only a flash in the pan and slowly the Cards began to yield ground. The team has the inherent strength and should be heard from next year.

Red admirers were in fine humor last night when the scoreboards over town showed they had won two games and Brooklyn had dropped two.

Local fans will be anxious to jump Roger Hornby, the highest priced infielder in the game today. And this study, athlete is there with the power every day in the week.

Lefty Nime, who is a graduate of the O. S. U. lot probably will be used in part of today's game.

The Reds owe a lot to the Cards. They pulled down the Giants and Dodgers for them and may cause them a good deal of trouble on their next swing through the East. Here is hoping.

Rube Benton suffered a split finger in Sunday's game on the Polo Grounds and may be laid up several days.

Edlie Brons is easily the best outfielder in the National. His fielding in the St. Louis series was marvellous.

Kircher Will Make Good

Kircher, one of Manager Rickey's latest pitching recruits had a wonderful record in the Virginia League as he won 13 games and lost only one for the Richmond team. Rickey really lost nothing by getting him here as he has already won two games in the St. Louis series.

Kopf Joins Team In Boston

Larry Kopf's injured digit is much improved and the flashy infielder will rejoin his team in Boston Wednesday. He was playing 100 percent ball when he got into the game again he is injured.

WHERE THEY WILL OPEN

Here is where the Western teams open in the East this week:
Cincinnati in Boston.
Pittsburgh in Philadelphia.
Chicago to New York.
St. Louis in Brooklyn.

DEMPSEY RECEIVES $55,000

BENTON HARBOR, MICH., Sept. 7.—After $50,000 with a picture of an act, of the punch, which Miske admitted, was the blow that really started him toward defeat. His ribs are bruised and his jaw is sore, but otherwise he is none the worse from his experience. After the knockout it was reported that one of Miske's ribs had been fractured. Dempsey did not bear a mark of the blow in the second round. After he had clinched with Miske, a party of his friends last night he spent the rest of the night and they arrived there was no no evening dancing at a summer party in St. Joseph. He planned to leave for Chicago late this afternoon, and will immediately set to work in search of new opponents to conquer. From the Philadelphia press, it was a success in every way. "The house was virtually sold out," he said. "I believe that the first of the season was held by some of the who were unable to arrive on time due to an accident on the railroad."

Miske was heartbroken over his defeat. He left the ring in tears and he had hoped to stay the fight and Dempsey, as he had done in other previous arguments. His father and wife were stupefied spectators.

A MATTER OF APPAREL

APPEARANCES count, it is said, they also count against you. That was the thought that came to us just now and in the advertising columns read a familiar name to an advertisement of a family product that is now known all over the United States. The name brought up a train of reminiscences that ended in the conclusion. A good many years ago we lived in the small town in which the product was first manufactured. We knew well the manufacturer and his family. Now a man of millions, he was by far the richest man in town. His wife was a plain and unpretentious lady. She had occasion to go to a renowned specialist in a big city to have an operation performed. As is the way of great specialists his charges were based on the ability of the patient to pay. He questioned the lady as to the occupation of her husband and she modestly stated he was a miller, not expending the occupation in any way and the specialist assuming she meant the mechanic of a flouring mill. The operation was entirely successful and when the village miller's wife returned in perfect health, she, of course, sang the praises of the specialist. Among those who listened to her was a neighbor, who decided she must have a like operation performed. Now her husband was manager of a small business and poor as a church mouse, but she was given to putting on style and boasting. So off to the great specialist she went, togged out in silks and jewelry and when he asked her the occupation of her husband she answered he ran the largest business of the sort in town, which was true, since it was the only one of the sort. The operation was duly performed and when she returned home the two patients compared notes and it was found the renowned specialist had charged the last visitor just five times more than he had the first.

Yes, appearances count, but when you put on your bravest front just remember you should be trying to get something out of the other fellow and not the arrangement such that he is to get all he can out of you.

SPIRIT OF RECKLESSNESS

SPIRIT of recklessness pervades society today. Reading any daily newspaper, one is impressed by the great number of accidents reported. Many of these are in connection with the operation of automobiles, but not by any means all of them. Burglaries and murders, holdups and illicit trading, with brief reference to politics, furnish topics for the other columns.

The world is moving at a terrific pace. The war that it passed through helped to make its population restless. In this country high prices and high wages have put life on a different scale. A noticeable slump in morals and religion has robbed us of much of our poise and equanimity and made us careless in conduct and regard for law. We are paying a stiff price in the toll of human life and bodily injuries for our spirit of recklessness.

We are anxious to get back to normal in economic relations, but it is far more important that we lay again the foundation of right living and right thinking and right relations to man. And the spirit of recklessness, and in many cases heedlessness, will give way to caution and a regard for the common good when the fundamental cause of our feverish haste is removed.

AND THIS IN BOSTON

THE first newspaper in America was issued two hundred and fifty years ago, come the 25th of September.

It was called "Publick Occurrences," got out just one number, being promptly suppressed by the authorities. It preached no new and strange doctrines, it did not advocate the overthrow of the government, it knew nothing about such a thing as Bolshevism, and it neither had nor expressed any opinions whatsoever. It simply narrated local happenings. But it created consternation, throwing the people into a panic. Such a thing had never been and therefore it should not be. Hence its sudden demise through the power of the state.

There are almost an even hundred papers in the country today for each year elapsed since the first one was printed. Among them are found many with new and strange doctrines and varied opinions. None are suppressed, but a good many ought to be, mostly because they make no energetic effort to be what they ought to be, and so profess, in a feeble sort of way, true enough.

What Europe needs is a few Irish policemen from New York to help her keep the peace.

An honest dealer and a prompt-paying customer make a happy combination in business.

Loose purse-strings are the sign to the profiteer that he can go the limit.

Bolshevism is ignorance in Russia; it is disloyalty in America.

New-York - Day - By - Day

BY G. O. McINTIRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A reigning Prince does not ripple the calm surface of this flimsy island. When Prince Carol of Romania, in a glittering four-wheeler, rolled up Fifth Avenue a messenger, in habiliments the customary two sizes too big, saw him and yelled to a group of newsmen: "Pipe Charlie Chaplin!" The Prince wears the conventional tooth-brush moustache so popular among royalty and movie stars.

Not long ago when Prince Edward was here he passed a little shop in the Forties. A young clerk saw the crowd in the rear and called out to a fellow waiting hanger across the way: "Who is it?" "A Prince," was the reply. "What? Another one?" was the bored reply with a yawn.

New York's idea of a prince is from the fairy books. They want to see the cruise cap, the chevron boots and jeweled garters. Hotel clerks say the prince, who has stopped here recently, is for all the world like the usual type of well-bred young sons of the rich.

"They are extremely courteous to page boys, elevator operators and other hotel servants," Prince Edward asked the telephone girl from a lobby booth for a number. She got it and said: "They want to know who it is?" "Tell them Edward Albert of Wales, please!" "O! You mean the Prince!" for several minutes the prince chatted pleasantly with the girl. When he left the hotel he ordered a five pound box of candy sent to each operator.

Prince Carol not only saw the artist and social side of New York, but he roamed about that section where night becomes a blaze of day. He was at the Midnight Frolic with a party of 20. At a nearby table was Theda Bara, and at another table Constance Talmadge. They excited much more attention than the Prince.

What makes royalty laugh? The same type of joke that appeals to the average American. Prince Carol laughed the heartiest at a musical play where a young lady said to the comedian: "I see the Holsteriks have taken Minsk and Bask!" "Captured Whisk?" said the comedian. He was told again, "Well," he said, "let's forget war and go play some golf."

One of the plants in a Coney Island fresh show rides about in an automobile. Owing to his size the space between the seat and the clutch is such that the giant lurches far down in the seat—looking like a very small figure. He was driving up Fifth Avenue the other day talking to a companion and violated a traffic rule. The corner cop seized at him. The giant thought he was under arrest and started to get out of the car. He wiggled about, began to uncoil and finally his full stature of nearly eight feet was revealed. The cop looked with astonishment and then waved: "Go on, go on, get 'th out of here!" And as the car moved away the cop stood and scratched his head.

Opticians along Fifth Avenue say that many American young men are being fitted for monocles. The custom is growing rapidly. These American lenses are seen in front of the latest eye glass. The son of a wealthy banker—who began as a railroad fireman, appeared at a Fifth Avenue dinner the other day wearing a monocle. It is laugh now. War who can tell? The wrist watch and bobbed hair have entirely ousted their early rivals and have become established institutions.

The Diary of an Engaged Girl

IN PARIS

Monday, September 6.—Leaving for Paris in the morning. Too tired and excited to write much in my book this evening. Saw and said adieu to Cecil this p.m. He seems awfully jumpy and excited too, about the trip.

Must turn in and sleep now.

Wednesday evening—And Paris smiling and rearing up at me from below! Yes, it's true, we are actually here in the city of lovely nonsense at last. And what a city! Words fail me.

That trip up from Dieppe yesterday afternoon was too exquisite for description, but I held my breath for sheer delight most of the way. And when the first roofs of Paris came into view, and the spires and domes against the pale saffron and rose evening sky first caught my eyes and heart! Then I knew just what a lucky girl I was to be seeing so much beauty, so very much beauty.

Mother and all of us were equally enchanted by our first glimpse of the City of Love, and as the train swept on, and right into the very heart of it all, I felt something like water fill my eyes for joy. I was in Paris, the city of my dreams, at last.

And as we got off the train, and became a part of it all, the pale evening mists and the lights and the warmth of it seemed to open its arms and embrace me in a warm welcome, which is just what I should have expected. We were dead tired, but not for the world could I have turned in without a promenade on the boulevards and a peek into at least one of the many fascinating cafes that I had always read about. So I had my way, and we stopped in at the Cafe Central, on the Boulevard des Italiens, and had a bite, before progressing to our hotel, where we are now safely settled, and all well. Cecilia and her Jeffry are never to be seen—at least not for long at a time—and I cannot blame them a bit, for I would want my lover all to myself if he were here and we were seeing Paris together for the very first time.

We are in the Hotel Florida, on the Boulevard Malesherbes, right at the beginning of it, and it's a pretty spot far from the Madeleine. Dear, oh, dear, how many times today have I walked by that wonderful corner of Paris, just to sniff the air and watch the people. It's most fascinating, and the flower markets—oh! Such heaps of flowers, such dear apple-cheeked peasant women busy selling them to the whole snailing world that comes here to buy. And such soft, musical voices as they raise, when they thrust a bunch of roses (that are only to be found in Paris) under your nose, and dare you to pass on without them. It can't be done, however.

Oh, that we too had the sense and the soul to turn some of our few squares at home into such beautiful ones as are to be found in Paris, and to offer flowers at a fair price to the whole world, and give all classes and conditions of men and women the chance to take home posies every night of their lives, even those who live in the slums. It would be ideal.

Of course the very first thing that I did was to drag Aunt Cecilia over to the Luxembourg Gardens this morning. She had to meet Jeffry at noon, not far from there (as he is showing her the Latin quarter), so she agreed to take me where I wished to go. I told mother not to worry, for I would take a taxi home, and not be alone on the streets, if I could help it. So off we went, and it was something to live for, I can tell you. When I saw my beloved Monnets, and Monnets, and those wonderful works of Rodin's I sat down on a railing and had a real cry. It's a good thing that the French are emotional themselves or the guards and a few others might easily have thought I was crazy or something! I am the happiest girl imaginable tonight—in spite of all heartaches. (To be continued.)

GORDON WOODBURY
 Gordon Woodbury has taken up his duties at Washington as assistant secretary of the navy, succeeding Frankella D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for vice-president.

Mr. Woodbury, who is fifty-six years old, was at one time editor of the Manchester, N. H., Union, and is a graduate of Harvard and of the Columbia School of Law. He has served in the New Hampshire legislature, and was a member of the constitutional convention of the state in 1900.

Mr. Woodbury is said to have long been an advocate of woman suffrage. He has been a Democratic tender in his state and was a candidate for congress in 1910, and a delegate to the last Democratic convention, where he served as a member of the resolutions committee.

During the World war, Mr. Woodbury was a Red Cross officer in France.

Mr. Woodbury's great uncle, Levi Woodbury, was secretary of the navy in Jackson's administration. His uncle, Gordon Woodbury, was an officer of the U. S. S. Catskill and was killed in the attack on Fort Wagner, Charleston Harbor, in 1863. Gustavus Fox, who was assistant secretary of the navy under Gordon Wells, was his cousin.

Bird Songs at Pairing Season.
 The tender emotions of the pairing season urge almost all birds, however unpropitious in ministry, to become troubadours for the time being—even from such birds as sandpipers, plovers, and others, the season calls forth a tribute of song. This often takes the form of a trill executed as the bird descends through the air, with wings upraised and trembling.

Give Me These Things
 Give me the dawn with a far sweep of red
 To flush the sombre sea and lave the lagoon.
 The ship of waters... shrill gulls overhead.
 That sweep to feast.

Give me a lazy river bending down
 Between the marshland to a sheltered bay....
 The silent hurry of a little town
 At birth of day.

Give me the miles of broken, surf-torn coast,
 The black tide inlet and the lush grass cove....
 A call to mock the gay wind's soul-fleeced least,
 That I may rove.

Give me the blue beneath the blue above,
 The slow clouds gathered in a drifting fold....
 A world unchanged, enduring things to love,
 And keep your gobs!

Give me the nights with all the leaning sky
 Flung silver with the stars—the light caress
 Of sleepy whiffs against the trees—
 And I
 Know happiness.

BILLY WHISKERS

Time after time the tiger tried to get hold of Billy, but the goat was too quick for him, though each time they met one or the other of them got a mark. At last Billy felt that he was nearly whipped. The two animals were now facing each other for another spring. The tiger, too, was suffering from the last hook that Billy had given him, but he was fresher than the goat. Billy swayed on his feet. The light seemed to turn into darkness before his eyes and he felt as if he were sinking down, down on a soft bed, but he kept his head bent in the tiger's direction. He felt rather than saw the tiger spring once more, and in spite of his weakened condition he braced himself up and gave one more sharp head toss of his strong neck. His horn caught the tiger right behind the front shoulder blade and pressed deeply in. This time he had found a vital spot. The tiger rolled over on his side and after a quiver or two, lay still. He was dead, but Billy did not know it, for the brave little goat had sunk to the floor with the tiger and lay motionless as his dead enemy. The animal men came running up first, the one with the revolver in front of the others. Holding his revolver pointed straight to where he knew it would reach the animal's heart, he approached as slowly and cautiously as a cat creeping up to a mouse hole, felt the tiger's side, and pronounced him really dead. Two of the men dragged the tiger away and the others crowded around the poor goat. At first they thought that he was dead, but when they examined him they found that his heart was still beating slowly. One of them came to bring water and another to get bandages. When Billy woke up his wounds had been nicely washed, ointment had been applied to them, and bandages were carefully bound over them. The men
